ABOUT US

The Disability Trust Limited (The Disability Trust) is a not-for-profit organisation providing supports across NSW, Victoria, Queensland and the NT and ACT. We are committed to providing highly professional care and support to people with disabilities and their families. Our purpose is to create an inclusive world built on trust, respect and equality where people with disabilities live the life they choose.

Our vision of an inclusive world extends from the protection of the rights of people with disabilities to the strengthening of societies within which the practice of human slavery is not tolerated. Central to our purpose is the delivery of services within a context of respect for human rights. We further recognise the disproportionate impact of human slavery on the world's most vulnerable people including people with disabilities, people of colour, women, children, migrant workers and refugees.

The Disability Trust will work proactively with people in the community sector and the corporate world to play our part in the eradication of modern slavery. We value the focus that the Modern Slavery Act (2018) has placed on the investigation of supply chains as a means of bringing about this change. The Disability Trust will continue to learn and explore ways to refine our approach to examination of our supply chains.

The Modern Slavery Act (2018) requires reporting entities subject to the Act, to produce an annual modern slavery statement.

Following is The Disability Trust's statement which has been approved by our Board of Directors.

OUR SUPPLY CHAINS

The Disability Trust operates lawfully and ethically and commits to only working with suppliers that respect the inherent worth of all people. We expect our suppliers to operate in accordance with all applicable modern slavery laws. We value and observe all laws regarding corporate social responsibility, environmental and workplace safety protection, staff inclusion and diversity.

The Disability Trust has formal policies in place that promote ethical governance including a Code of Conduct for our Board and employees and a Whistle-blower Protection Policy.

The Disability Trust's primary business model is that of service delivery. Disability services are primarily delivered through the employment and management of our workforce and therefore direct labour is the most significant element of supply.

The Disability Trust supply chain includes the purchase of products and services needed for the organisation's day-to-day operations including office supplies and office equipment, training of staff, purchase and leasing of properties suitable for our operations, purchase of vehicles, access to external advice and consultancies. For our residential services, we purchase from mainstream supermarkets, large furniture stores, and other suppliers of household items. We also purchase specialist aids and equipment for people with disabilities through individual participant NDIS plans allocated by the Commonwealth.

The Disability Trust will continue to take a risk assessment approach to investigation of supply chains. We will review the Modern Slavery Statements of Australian companies such as major supermarkets and retail chains. We will continue to ensure that our own workplace practices are compliant with the principles expressed in the statement. To the best of our ability, we will check the employment practices of companies from which we purchase any supplies.

POTENTIAL RISKS IN OUR OPERATIONS AND SUPPLY CHAINS

The Disability Trust is predominantly a service-provision based organisation. While almost all of our direct suppliers are Australian based, which is viewed as a low-risk area for modern slavery, The Disability Trust acknowledges risks such as contractors in the construction industry using low skilled and casual labour as well as the lack of visibility in manufacturing supply chains for consumables such as IT hardware, PPE, stationery, uniforms and household items.

The Disability Trust is focused on effectively supporting any processes that will eradicate modern slavery and recognises that slavery can occur in many forms. We are committed to only working with vendors who operate legally and ethically and who do not engage in modern slavery practices and we expect our suppliers to follow all applicable modern slavery regulations. The Disability Trust commits to comply with all laws governing environmental and workplace safety, corporate social responsibility, and employee inclusion and diversity. The Disability Trust already has formal policies and procedures in place to encourage ethical governance, such as a Code of Conduct for our Board of Directors and employees, as well as a Whistleblower Policy.

The Disability Trust's Governance framework includes several Committees that report into the Board, including Finance, Audit, Investment, & Risk Committee, Quality, Safeguards & Risk Committee, and Digital, Technology and Customer Experience Committee. Board members and employees are expected to operate in accordance with state and federal laws that may impact on the company e.g. Workcover legislation, Australian Charities and Not-for-profits Commission requirements, Employment Law, Antidiscrimination Legislation, Trade Practices Act, Modern Slavery Act.

Workforce

The Disability Trust has a centralised recruitment team so that The Disability Trust has the ability to recruit employees directly. The Disability Trust always recruits and selects the best possible candidates for the role and is committed to ensuring recruitment and on-boarding practices are open and transparent. Staff are paid appropriately in accordance with the Award which they are employed under. The Disability Trust ensures eligibility to work in Australia is checked before making an offer of employment.

Procurement and Contractors

The Disability Trust is committed to combatting Modern Slavery practices in its supply chains and its business operations and will endeavour to promote practices to identify and reduce the risk of such practices when working within its supply chain. Staff must consider the risk of Modern Slavery in relation to their purchasing practices when engaging new suppliers or re-engaging existing suppliers and should consider giving preference to suppliers who provide transparent, complete and accurate information in relation to their supply chains when requested by The Disability Trust.

The Disability Trust procurement policy framework provides a consolidated view of The Disability Trust's procurement objectives and requirements to apply each step of the process. The framework has a broad end to end process addressing business need identification to managing supplier relationships. The framework applies to the procurement of goods and services of any kind including construction and property.

The key purpose of The Disability Trust Procurement Policy Framework is to assist The Disability Trust employees to implement the mandatory requirements of the policy when undertaking procurement.

1. Provide The Disability Trust employees with a plain English document that is simple to understand and use when undertaking procurement.
2. Encourage The Disability Trust employees to use more strategic approaches and best practice, when procuring for The Disability Trust.
3. Encourage The Disability Trust employees to be fair and achieve best value for money, to stimulate competition, sustainability, diversity and innovation to develop better outcomes for the organisation and participants.
4. Ensure that The Disability Trust adheres to the principles of the Modern Slavery Act and the contribution that modern slavery has on the abuse, exploitation and marginalisation of people.

ASSESSING OUR EFFECTIVENESS

Over the past twelve months, The Disability Trust has addressed modern slavery risks by:

- Reviewing our updating policies and procedures to identify any mitigate any modern slavery risks.
- Including specific clauses that guard against modern slavery risks in contracts with consultants and suppliers particularly in relation to construction and multi-tiered manufacturing supply chains for consumables such as IT hardware, PPE, stationery, uniforms and household items.
- Reviewing Modern Slavery Statements of our suppliers where applicable to determine their awareness of modern slavery risks.
- Including awareness of the Modern Slavery Act to strengthen The Trust's messaging that the practice of human slavery is not tolerated in our staff induction program.
