Each of the Business Groups' head offices are situated in Queensland, Australia, with Culture Kings and Petal & Pup based in Brisbane, and Princess Polly on the Gold Coast. Together, the Polly Holdco Group employs 922 employees worldwide.

a.k.a. Brands sets strategies regarding modern slavery for the Polly Holdco Group as a whole and the board of each Business Group is responsible for setting the specific strategy, policies and procedure for that Business Group as well as overseeing governance issues.

The management team of each Business Group is responsible for delivering the strategic objectives set by the Business Group. This includes day to day compliance and ensuring policies and procedures are adhered to by members and staff.

4. SUPPLY CHAINS

Polly Holdco stocks and sells products from both its own in-house brands and third-party products on the Business Groups' respective websites and stores.

In-House Brands

During the reporting period, Polly Holdco engaged textile and manufacturing suppliers of in-house brands across a number of countries and regions including China, Mexico, Australia, India, Pakistan Turkey and Vietnam.

Third-Party Products

During the reporting period, Polly Holdco also engaged various third-party product suppliers to provide third party products as inventory. In each instance, our direct relationship lies with the third-party product suppliers themselves, rather than the third-party's factories or suppliers.

5. RISKS OF MODERN SLAVERY

No specific instances of modern slavery were identified in operations or supply chains for any member of the Polly Holdco group during the reporting period. However, Polly Holdco acknowledges that the global clothing and textile industry is considered a high area of risk for modern slavery, and that Polly Holdco's operational footprint means that its manufacturers may be located in countries where modern slavery is more prevalent.

Industry and Sector Risk

Factors associated with the manufacture of clothing, footwear, headwear and accessories can lead to increased risk of modern slavery. These factors include the nature of the work required, short-term contracts, pressure from purchasing practices such as short product delivery timelines, sub-contracting, reliance on unskilled or migrant workers and costs of production.

Country Risk

A number of the countries and regions in which Polly Holdco's in-house and third-party products were manufactured have vulnerable populations, and/or are jurisdictions where worker rights and protections may sometimes be less formalised or less readily enforced than in Australia.

Secondary Levels

Polly Holdco recognises that it has limited visibility over secondary levels of our chain of suppliers, third-party product suppliers and the source materials used in our products. The risk of manufacturers engaging second level suppliers increases the risk of low skill and migrant workers being engaged in the production of Polly Holdco's in-house and third-party products.

To help address these risks, we have developed frameworks for engaging with our manufacturers using a robust procurement process with auditing procedures and regular compliance programs.

6. MITIGATION OF MODERN SLAVERY RISKS

Polly Holdco understands that a commitment to mitigating modern slavery risks involves dedicating time and resources on an ongoing basis. Polly Holdco conducts a multi-faceted risk assessment to understand the risks of human rights abuses in our supply chain.

As outlined above, Polly Holdco has limited visibility over secondary levels of its chain of suppliers, third-party product suppliers and the source materials used in our products. Unless stated otherwise, the mitigation strategies outlined in this section 6 of are utilised for final stage production of in-house products only.

Onboarding

Prior to engaging with any potential supplier, Culture Kings and Princess Polly each conduct an initial screening of that potential supplier to identify any risks of exposure to modern slavery. Those Business Groups continue to conduct ongoing risk assessments to maintain the currency of those assessments with their suppliers throughout the term of their engagement.

Our due diligence approach draws on desktop research from globally recognized indices and resources, supply chain mapping, supplier and worker surveys, audit reporting, and site visit observations. We use this to evaluate our existing supply chain and to source new suppliers. We are committed to reviewing our risk assessment approaches, remaining well-informed on updated research, and continuously assessing our supply chain.

Petal & Pup's onboarding documents outline Petal & Pup's expectation that each supplier have appropriate systems in place to identify, manage and mitigate the risks of modern slavery. Petal & Pup did not otherwise undertake any specific onboarding procedures relating to modern slavery in the reporting period.

Monitoring

As part of our anti modern slavery initiatives, we continually monitor and audit our supplier relationships and sourcing arrangements for modern slavery risks in our supply chain. We do this by:

- engaging with our suppliers on a regular basis to monitor performance and potential for modern slavery issues; and
- where practicable, including a contractual obligation to comply with a Code of Conduct, including an anti-slavery provision.

Training

Polly Holdco recognises the importance of staff training and awareness. During the reporting period, we conducted training via interactive e-learning modules that included topics on ethics, conflicts of interest, human rights, integrity, working with third parties/monitoring and evaluating, anti-bribery and corruption.

Standards and Policy

Each Business Group may develop and maintain standards and policies relevant to modern slavery that best suit that individual Business Group, their supply chain and their operating procedures. Each Business Group (with the exception of Petal & Pup) has terms of trade that each supplier must adhere to which includes modern slavery requirements. Compliance with each Business Groups' relevant policies and procedures is continually monitored.

Culture Kings and Princess Polly each maintain a database containing any supplier factory certifications and the details of third party audits. Petal & Pup does not maintain such a database. Culture Kings and Princess Polly review all supplier documentation and have escalation procedures in place in the event of non-compliance with the relevant terms of trade, policy or the relevant factory certification. Where non-compliance has occurred, the Business Group will take remedial and/or corrective action and terminate the relevant supply arrangements if necessary.

7. EFFECTIVENESS

The management team of each Business Group is accountable for the daily compliance of that Business Group (including all operating entities and subsidiary boards) with identifying and mitigating modern slavery risks in its operations and supply chains and assessing the effectiveness of the Business Group's risk mitigation initiatives. a.k.a. Brands provides group level directions where necessary and reviews the policies and procedures of each Business Group.

The management team of each Business Group undertakes regular reviews of that Business Group's modern slavery processes, procedures and policies (if any) and Polly Holdco is committed to improving its practices and mitigating modern slavery risks in its supply chains.

8. CONSULTATION
