Modern Slavery Risks

OSW have conducted a risk assessment of its supply chain by taking into account the risk profile of individual countries and the services provided by its key suppliers.

Due to the nature of OSW's business model, OSW recognises the potential risks of modern slavery and human trafficking occurring within its Australian and international supply chain. OSW sources a high proportion of its solar and electrical products from suppliers that operate in high risk countries, including China.

OSW undertakes due diligence on its suppliers and their supply chains and takes action as necessary to manage any suppliers who it has identified as high risk. There is risk of OSW being directly linked or contributing to modern slavery within its supply chain due to suppliers' location in high risk locations or OSW's sourcing of products that are known to have high risk supply chains. Poor procurement practices including pressure to drive down costs can further increase our risks.

In the Reporting Period, OSW has identified that certain key suppliers have a supply chain which has established links to slave labour, and poses a modern slavery risk to the organisation.

OSW is reviewing the relevant suppliers' latest Modern Slavery Statements, Statement on Forced Labour, Code of Conducts, as applicable, and continues to monitor and assess these situations. OSW is also reviewing its current supplier contracts with these suppliers to assess the risks of this affecting OSW's supply chain. OSW will work with the relevant suppliers to ensure that these risks are appropriately managed and resolved to OSW's satisfaction. Where not resolved, OSW will explore opportunities to replace such suppliers with compliant suppliers.

Actions Taken to Address Risks of Modern Slavery

OSW has taken the following steps to manage and safeguard against modern slavery and human trafficking risks within its business and supply chain.

Policies

OSW is committed to high standards of corporate governance. OSW has a number of policy and procedural documents in place to provide a framework for protection against slavery and human trafficking.

In the Reporting Period, OSW followed its updated policies and procedures to identify and manage risks associated with slavery and human trafficking, including OSW's code of conduct which outlines the corporate values and ethical principles, and sets out the acceptable behaviours expected of OSW's employees, contractors and suppliers.

Supplier Due Diligence

OSW is also committing to improving its procurement systems to have better oversight over its suppliers, particularly those suppliers based in high risk jurisdictions. When engaging new suppliers in its supply chain, OSW has committed to the following:

- identify any high-risk jurisdictions in its supply chain;
- evaluate the modern slavery risks of each new supplier prior to entering into a contractual relationship;
- request and review supplier's internal policies, statements, code of conducts in relation to the slavery, forced labour and human trafficking; and

- obtain specific contractual commitment with respect to modern slavery risks from each of its suppliers through inclusion of appropriate contractual terms with its suppliers.

Remediation Process

In the event that slavery or human trafficking is found to be occurring within our direct supply chain in the future, OSW will engage proactively with the supplier to request it to remedy the issue, and may terminate the supplier relationship if the issue is severe and cannot be remedied to align with OSW's policies.

Awareness and Training

OSW recognises the vital role that internal training and development plays in promoting awareness of modern slavery risks and responses. To assist with the identification and mitigation of modern slavery risks going forward, OSW has committed to providing a modern slavery awareness training program to its employees (including those of its wholly-owned subsidiaries) covering:

- information about what constitutes modern slavery;
- how employees can identify signs of modern slavery and human trafficking; and
- how employees should respond if they suspect slavery or human trafficking.

Assessing the Effectiveness of Our Actions

The effectiveness of OSW's actions to mitigate modern slavery risks will be assessed by monitoring and analysing supplier due diligence responses, survey and audit results and completion rates for awareness and training modules.

Consultation with Our Entities

A process of internal consultation across OSW informed the drafting of this Statement. This included engagement with a modern slavery working group, consisting of Hongwei Zhang and Chang Yu which was formed as part of OSW's commitment to help manage human rights and modern slavery risks across its operations and supply chains.

Approval

This statement has been developed by OSW, in consultation with each of its controlled entities, and was approved by the board of directors of OSW on 7 March 2024.
