Assessment of our Operations and Supply Chain under the Modern Slavery Act

Operational Environment

Swiss Re Reporting Entities operate in a regulated financial services environment, predominantly in developed countries where the rule of law is guaranteed by a form of constitution and independent courts. The nature of our core business – reinsurance and insurance – involves business with other insurance companies and large commercial customers and requires operation by highly skilled or educated employees or external workers. We adhere to the Group Code of Conduct, policies and standards which set out how to conduct business legally, ethically, and responsibly.

Swiss Re Employees

Recruitment of all employees by Swiss Re is conducted in accordance with our Global Standard on Recruitment. This requires all applicants to undergo formal pre-screening for review of their eligibility, work permits and completeness of documents. All Swiss Re employees are employed by mutual agreement through a written contract governed by local law and terminable by either party.

We also recognise that there are inherent modern slavery risks associated with having operations in countries that have been ranked by the Global Slavery Index as having a higher prevalence of modern slavery. However, these risks are mitigated by virtue of the low risk profile of our highly skilled workforce combined with our compliance with Group internal policies and processes relevant in addressing the risk of modern slavery as described in the previous paragraph.

External Workforce

The assessment of modern slavery risk involves the review of the process by which and from whom we procure goods and services.

We recognise that the following supply chain categories may have a higher risk of modern slavery associated with the country of origin/manufacture, industry, and workforce: IT and telecommunications hardware, IT system support, logistics, postal and delivery services, utilities, promotional merchandise, stationery and uniforms, cleaning and maintenance services, and food, beverage, catering services and flower suppliers.

We have also taken note of our non-controlling investments in our risk assessment.

Risk Analysis Process

We identified the departments that oversee our operations, asset management, human resources and procurement of goods and services for the Swiss Re Reporting Entities as the key focus for the assessment.

Previously we have conducted a supplier mapping and risk assessment exercise in relation to in scope suppliers paid by Swiss Re operations. A risk assessment of our Australian operations and in scope supply chain for the financial year of 2023, was again conducted by way of due diligence questionnaires to representatives in these teams and in 2023 this was expanded to enhanced supplier due diligence.

Addressing the Risk of Modern Slavery

Swiss Re Group has various frameworks, guidelines, policies, standards, and processes (governance framework), which are relevant in addressing the risk of modern slavery. Each Swiss Re Reporting Entity operates in strict adherence to these requirements.

Group's Commitment

Swiss Re has a long-standing commitment to sustainability. Swiss Re seeks to align with expectations outlined in the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights, commonly known as the Ruggie Framework, and is a signatory to the UN Global Compact. We are also signatories to the UN-supported Principles for Responsible Investment and to the United Nations Principles for Sustainable Insurance. These ethical principles inform part of our Group Code of Conduct, which provides guidance to Swiss Re employees in making responsible decisions and achieving results with utmost integrity.

We recognise the importance of upholding human rights, labour standards and environmental protection in fostering responsible business practices and sustainable development. As such, we have developed the Swiss Re Environmental, Social and Governance ("ESG") Risk Framework ("ESG Risk Framework"), which is based on principles of environmental protection, respecting human rights, and promoting good corporate governance. These principles are encapsulated in three Umbrella Guidelines, i.e. Environmental, Social/Human Rights and Governance.

The Group Executive Committee has further embedded these principles into Swiss Re Group's business through the implementation of the Group Sustainability Strategy. To learn more about our commitment to sustainability, the Group Sustainability Strategy, and the measures we have undertaken to uphold this commitment, please see our Swiss Re 2023 Sustainability Report and the Sustainability section of our website.

Policies and Standards

Swiss Re's commitment to human rights is supported by policies that identify, assess and mitigate risks of modern slavery. These include Swiss Re Code of Conduct, Sustainable Business Environmental, Social & Governance \(ESG\) Risk Framework, standards for managing sustainability risk, investing responsibly, and sourcing ethically. These standards and policies identify, assess, and mitigate risks of modern slavery and are reviewed regularly by the Swiss Re Group.

Group Risk and Compliance Procedures

Any incidents of non-compliance with these standards are, recorded and examined to facilitate the periodic review and continuous improvement of our policies and processes to enhance adherence thereto.

Whistleblowing

All employees and candidates have access to an externally hosted Whistleblowing Hotline to report openly and anonymously suspicions of misconduct, including activity appearing to be unethical. The Hotline is accessible by phone or via a website, both of which are operated by an independent service provider. All reports are treated in confidence, and Swiss Re maintains a zero-tolerance policy regarding retaliation against any individual reporting in good faith.

Our supply chain and procurement processes

To run Swiss Re's operations we procure a wide range of goods and services from vendors, and we recognise and mitigate the supply chain risk that exists where our suppliers do not apply national or international legal and regulatory standards, or do not follow the principles set out in the UN Global Compact. The principles of the UN Global Compact are incorporated by reference into Swiss Re's Code of Conduct, and specifically cover Swiss Re's relationships with external service providers under the headings of human rights, labour conditions, environmental impact, and anticorruption. The procurement of goods and services from external vendors is conducted in accordance with our Targeted Standard on Procurement, which refers to our Code of Conduct and this also incorporates headings from the UN Global Compact.

Swiss Re procures various goods and services to support its operations governed by its Targeted Standard on Procurement including operating expenses related to the relating supply chain. The Targeted Standard on Procurement is set requirements that Swiss Re uses to identify, assess, and manage the risks associated with its vendor relationships. When selecting goods and services, we examine whether they comply with our requirements. We review existing strategic suppliers in periodic contract reviews, and we visit selected individual suppliers to inspect them onsite or virtually. The respective basis in our Vendor Risk Management Framework where modern slavery is explicitly mentioned as a core due diligence item in our vendor management process. Internally we hold regular awareness training on the principles of our Code of Conduct with all our procurement staff.

We take a multi-layered and integrated approach to sustainable supply chain management, using collaborative platforms provided by multiple external providers to assess and screen suppliers and supply networks against corporate social responsibility criteria. The methodologies developed by these platforms explicitly incorporate human rights compliance due diligence, including screening for use of child and forced labour, and human trafficking. We use these platforms across all sourcing categories accounting for approximately 80% of Swiss Re Group's spending related to procured goods and services.

To meet the requirements relating to child labour contained in the Swiss Code of Obligations and assess the risk of child labour in its supply chain, Swiss Re's ESG assessment asks vendors to confirm, for example, that they comply with the ILO Minimum Age Convention (No. 138) and the ILO Worst Forms of Child Labour Convention (No. 182). Other questions related to the verification of legal proof of age documentation for all employees are also included in this assessment. As a result of such efforts, during this reporting cycle Swiss Re has not identified reasonable grounds to suspect child labour in its supply chain.

Our clients and business transactions

Our ESG Risk Framework is an advanced risk management instrument that enables the company to identify, assess and address environmental, social, and human rights, and governance-related risks potentially associated with the company's transactions. This includes human rights violations, forced labour and slavery. The framework is applied across Swiss Re's business activities including re/insurance transactions and investments, where information granularity is available and allows for a meaningful ESG risk assessment.

The ESG Risk Tool which reflects the criteria of the ESG Risk Framework is embedded into underwriting tools. It gives our underwriters an indication of the ESG risk exposures of their transactions, provides them with clear guidance on what to assess in further detail and signals which highly sensitive transactions need to be referred to our ESG Risk team. The ESG Risk team issues binding recommendations to either proceed, proceed under certain conditions or to abstain from the transaction.

Swiss Re also excludes sensitive industries in countries with particularly poor human rights records. We review and update this list of sensitive industry and country combinations annually.

Our investments and acquisitions

Swiss Re invests its assets responsibly via a controlled and structured investment process, integrating ESG criteria along the entire investment process. As part of that, we consider better ESG rated companies for our listed equity and corporate bond investments.

Furthermore, Asset Management's approach to exclusion is based on the Group-wide ESG Risk Framework, which sets criteria for what Swiss Re considers acceptable business and may lead to restrictions of companies or countries from our investment universe.

Additionally, Swiss Re considers the way companies conduct their business by screening their alignment with the UN Global Compact Principles on human rights, labour, environment, and anti-corruption, where information granularity is available.

Due diligence is conducted for all corporate transactions in accordance with Swiss Re's Code of Conduct. This includes pre-due diligence screening using internal and external resources in order to identify and assess ESG and regulatory risks. During the due diligence process, the deal team works closely with Group Risk Management and Compliance functions, as well as when required with external advisors, to perform sustainable business risk, political risk and compliance assessments. Swiss Re is part of major sustainability indices based on sustainability ratings received by external data providers. To learn more about our investing approach, please see the Responsible Investing in Practice section of our website.

Our External investment management monitoring

Swiss Re has a process for establishing and maintaining oversight and monitoring of external investment managers appointed to manage Swiss Re assets. Within this oversight framework, ESG is covered as a specific area of review. An ESG assessment is performed as part of the selection for each new external investment manager with the results considered as part of the evaluation and decision-making process. Each external investment manager is regularly reviewed, assessed, and monitored from an ESG perspective with a focus on their policies, procedures, governance and application of ESG principles across the investment portfolio. Human rights are a part of the "Social" component of this assessment.

Our action against money laundering and financial crime

In order to safeguard against the potential misuse of Swiss Re for money laundering activities, an extensive Global Anti-Money Laundering Programme (the "AML Programme") has been established to guarantee adherence to Anti-Money Laundering and Counter-Terrorist Financing (AML) statutes and regulations. This program encompasses risk-based assessment of counterparties, continuous screening against specialized AML watchlists, and risk-based monitoring of financial transactions.

Swiss Re also implements mandatory AML training for all employees supporting awareness of the requirement to report illegal, suspicious, or unusual activity to their designated group or regional money laundering reporting officer, and in turn the reporting of such suspicions to relevant authorities. An anonymous whistleblowing hotline is also made available for reporting concerns. A regulatory monitoring solution is also in place to track regulatory changes and emerging risks.

Swiss Re is subject to internal and independent reviews and audits to test the design and effectiveness of the AML Programme.

Swiss Re adheres to the Recommendations of the Financial Action Taskforce, the leading international organization in the fight against money laundering and terrorist financing.

Assessing the Effectiveness of our Efforts in Combating Modern Slavery

Swiss Re regularly reviews our governance framework and the monitoring of our compliance with those requirements to assess effectiveness.

Swiss Re reporting entities are constantly seeking to improve the degree of the supply chain visibility. In 2023 we conducted a thorough review of previous years assessment and improved on the Modern Slavery due-diligence process to seek to continually improve our approach and ensure robust risk management.

Since 2021, new in scope vendors supporting operations are required to complete the ESG assessment during the onboarding process. The transparency gained on vendors' sustainability performance is an important element of Swiss Re's ESG Vendor Development Programme (VDP), which aims to support vendors in continuously improving and maintaining their ESG performance.

Consultation Process Amongst Swiss Re Reporting Entities and With Controlled Entities

Representatives of the head offices of each of the Swiss Re Reporting Entities were informed of the requirements of the MSA. The risk assessment for our operation and supply chain was discussed and consulted with the representatives of each key functional team participating in the due diligence process to prepare this Statement.
