This Statement covers the period 1 January 2022 to 31 December 2022.

The reporting entities are members of the Russell Investments group of companies (Russell Investments).

The term 'modern slavery' has the same meaning as provided in the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth) (Modern Slavery). The Reporting Entities recognise the risk of Modern Slavery in business supply chains, and seek to ensure that each subsequent statement demonstrates continual improvement in this area, noting in particular the higher risk for global supply chains. We strive to ensure that our systems and processes are fit for purpose in combating the risk of Modern Slavery activity within our supply chain, including the risk of forced labour, child labour, domestic servitude and workplace abuse. In a global context, Russell Investments continues to grow its engagement in an internationally consistent, top-down approach to ESG issues, including Modern Slavery risk.

Organisational structure

About Russell Investments

Russell Investments is a global investment solutions provider focused on helping investors achieve their investment goals, bringing together our capabilities in strategic advice, manager research and implementation. Globally, our roughly 1,300 associates work to manage over AUD$430 billion (31 March 2023) and advise AUD$1.5 trillion (30 June 2022) on behalf of more than 1,800 clients.

Our Australian story began in the late 1980s when we introduced our multi-strategy funds to the Australian market. Today, we have roughly 130 local associates and partner with a range of clients to manage more than AUD$35 billion in AUM (as of 31 March 2023).

Headquartered in Seattle, Washington, Russell Investments operates multi-nationally and is dedicated to improving people's financial security, leveraging an over 85-year client-centric heritage grounded in investment innovation.

Russell Investments' ownership comprises a majority stake held by funds managed by TA Associates, with minority stakes held by funds managed by Reverence Capital Partners, Hamilton Lane and Russell Investments' management.

Russell Investments Australia Funds

Russell Investment Management Ltd (RIML) draws on the experience, expertise, and resources within the global Russell Investments group to operate as a responsible entity or trustee of the Russell Investments Australia Funds. RIML may appoint one or more different money managers or advisers to manage or advise on some or all of the assets of these funds. Money managers may be third party investment managers or other members of the Russell Investments group.

Russell Investments Superannuation Funds

Russell Investments provides superannuation services for approximately 69,000 members of the Russell Investments Master Trust. Total Risk Management Pty Limited is the trustee of the Russell Investments Master Trust and the Russell Investments Pooled Superannuation Trust, each of which primarily invest, directly or indirectly, in the Russell Investments Australia Funds.

Our superannuation service is largely customised, allowing us to deliver superannuation services that are tailored to the needs and circumstances of individual employers and helps us drive engagement with their employees, who are our members.

Russell Investments Implementation Services, LLC

Russell Investments Implementation Services, LLC is a US company which is registered as a foreign company in Australia, and provides a wide range of investment management and trade execution services to its clients including the Russell Investments Australia Funds. Central to these services is Russell Investments' trading desk in Seattle, Washington, which is a multi-venue platform for trading equities, bonds, listed and OTC derivatives and foreign exchange/currency.

OUR BELIEFS

Russell Investments Supply Chain and associated Risks of Modern Slavery

The reporting entities understand that the assets managed for Russell Investments' funds and both Australian and global clients represent an opportunity and obligation to help drive positive outcomes in the areas of sustainability and social change. We strive to use the influence afforded by the investment choices we make to reduce the risk of Modern Slavery within our global investment portfolios.

The reporting entities have a range of global and Australian supplier relationships. In assessing the risk of Modern Slavery in the Australian business, we have divided our supply chain into two groups:

- businesses that support the day-to-day running of our Australian operations, including custodian and administrators for the Russell Investments Master Trust and Russell Investments Australia Funds business (Operations Supply Chain); and
- businesses that support our investment solutions business including assets directly managed by Russell Investments and our money managers (Investment Supply Chain).

Operations Supply Chain

The reporting entities initially assessed the Modern Slavery risk of the Operations Supply Chain by considering the type of industry and service provided, global and geographical regions of operations and supply chains, and financial materiality of the vendor to the Russell Investments' Australian operations. Suppliers considered to be higher risk after this initial assessment were asked to respond to a questionnaire designed to help us more clearly understand the risk of Modern Slavery within their businesses and supply chains (for example, businesses that operate in multiple global locations – or in global locations deemed to be of higher risk, or whose products and services are within or make use of industries considered at higher risk of Modern Slavery). As a result of this process and the responses reviewed, we have concluded that the risk of Modern Slavery within this part of our supply chain remains low.

Investment Supply Chain

Russell Investments has been conducting money manager research in a global capacity for over 50 years and follows a disciplined research process to select and recommend money managers for use within the Russell Investments funds in Australia and globally. Our proprietary manager research process is based on qualitative assessments supported by quantitative analysis. The aim of our research process is to identify strategies that will outperform. This assessment includes many facets, including ESG considerations.

Russell Investments uses information from a variety of sources, including third party data providers, as well as data gathered as part of our investment and operational due diligence processes to help understand the risk of Modern Slavery within Russell Investments' investment portfolios.

Russell Investments analysts in the Investment Division use a range of ESG data derived from various third party and internal subject matter experts when researching, analysing, and constructing our global investment portfolios. On a monthly basis, all Russell Investments equity funds report against their benchmarks. This helps portfolio managers understand the ESG risks present in their portfolio, including those associated with Modern Slavery. Modern Slavery risk variables (such as human rights, human capital and human supply chain risk) for each Russell Investments Australia Fund are measured relative to the fund benchmark. The data from our reports enables us to understand the potential for exposure to Modern Slavery in our equity portfolios.

Addressing Modern Slavery risk in our Supply Chains

Operations Supply Chain

A Modern Slavery risk assessment, as described above, is conducted on an annual basis, while Modern Slavery risk assessments have also been included in periodic meetings with certain suppliers in this category. Further opportunities for engagement in this area will continue to be explored.

Investments Supply Chain

Regular engagement with our money managers on measuring and acting on ESG risks is another key aspect of managing and understanding the Modern Slavery risks in our funds.

As outlined in more detail below, ESG is one area that Russell Investments' manager research analysts formally assess for every investment strategy. We have regular dialogue with the money managers on ESG matters, including Modern Slavery considerations. In addition, Russell Investments portfolio managers perform a quarterly review of ESG risks in our funds.

Our money managers often have a close understanding of where potential Modern Slavery risks may lie and how those risks are being addressed on the ground. We draw on this expertise to help us better understand the Modern Slavery risks in the companies in which we invest and consider the most appropriate action, including in some cases, direct engagement with investee companies, in partnership with our money managers.

Initial and Ongoing Due Diligence Processes

Russell Investments has a specialised global team that carries out initial due diligence on any money manager being considered to manage or advise on all Russell Investments funds globally. This includes an assessment of their structure, function and governance, including the following ESG factors:

ESG Commitment – quality of ESG resources (data and people) and alignment with the investment process.

ESG Consideration – quality of their insights and assessment of ESG related risks and returns.

ESG Implementation – effectiveness of reflecting ESG insights in the portfolio.

Active Ownership – quality, consistency and effectiveness of engagement with companies on ESG matters.

The Investment Division assesses each prospective money manager against the above criteria, and then grades them against their industry peers. Additionally, our quarterly risk management questionnaires that are completed by all money managers who manage the Russell Investments Australia Funds now contain specific Modern Slavery questions, which relate to the risk of Modern Slavery within the money manager's business and supply chain.

Sustainability Risks Policy and Enhanced Oversight Programme

From the last reporting period, Russell Investments continues to operate in keeping with its Sustainability Risks Policy. This policy describes how we manage our ESG risks in a sustainable manner across our global investment portfolios. Modern Slavery has been defined as one of the risks to be managed in our portfolios, typically from a 'Social' (S) or 'Governance' (G) perspective.

As part of the continuing implementation of the Sustainability Risks Policy, Russell Investments has further developed and expanded the global Enhanced Oversight Program, working with third party ESG data provider, Sustainalytics (for further detail, Please see the 'Active Ownership and Partnering' section below) to help evaluate ESG risks contained in our funds. Engagement activities, both direct and from our money managers, are recorded in a proprietary database 'ENACT' to allow us to assess how the companies we are investing in are progressing managing ESG risks from their business activities.

The Enhanced Oversight Program requires Russell Investments portfolio managers to assess ESG risks in their funds as part of their quarterly fund review process. ESG data provided by Sustainalytics is used by Russell Investments to help determine the areas of ESG risk contained in our funds.

If Modern Slavery risks in a fund are highlighted as part of this review process, the portfolio manager will broaden the discussion to research analysts and (likely) the money manager responsible for a particular security holding in the fund. Russell Investments' portfolio managers are directly accountable for ESG risks identified as part of the Enhanced Oversight Program. This includes keeping adequate records of all discussions and outcomes with relevant money managers.

Active Ownership and Partnering

At Russell Investments, we believe that a strong stewardship program includes pursuing activities which offer the highest return or risk mitigation opportunities. To this end, Russell Investments' Active Ownership Team strategy is focused on material issues under the general categories of 'Environment,' 'Social,' and 'Governance.' Within the 'Social' category, we have defined "human capital management" which is focused on how companies attract, develop, and retain employees while providing working conditions favouring greater employee engagement. We believe that ensuring investee companies exhibit an adequate management of their human capital can help to prevent trafficking, forced labour, child labour, and other forms of Modern Slavery.

With a view to continue to effectively address Modern Slavery risks into the future, in 2022, Russell Investments joined Investors Against Slavery and Trafficking Asia Pacific (IAST APAC). IAST APAC was launched in 2020 as an investor initiative to promote effective action by companies in the APAC region to find, fix and prevent Modern Slavery, labour exploitation and human trafficking in their value chains. IAST APAC currently represents AU$8.2 trillion in assets under management across 37 investor members.

We intend to contribute to IAST APAC in the collaborative investor-company engagement work stream. The focus is collaborative engagement by IAST APAC investors with specific focus companies in the Asia-Pacific region. Collaborative engagement aims to maximise leverage, generate efficiencies and build knowledge.

OUR SOLUTIONS

Going Forward and Ongoing Assessment

This is the third year of Modern Slavery reporting for Russell Investments in Australia. We will continue embedding our Modern Slavery risk and education processes throughout our business and monitoring the effectiveness of these steps through analysis of relevant data collected both internally, and through third party providers.

Russell Investments is committed to the process of continuous assessment and improvement of all our systems and processes as the business changes and grows overtime. The Enhanced Oversight Program, which was established in 2020, is now operating on a business as usual basis and will continue to be reviewed for effectiveness against a range of criteria. Where necessary, processes and governance will continue to be adjusted to ensure the Enhanced Oversight Program is operating efficiently.

We will continue our engagement activities with companies directly, together with our money managers and as part of our membership of IAST APAC.

Training

The Russell Investments Australia Funds utilise the expertise and experience of Russell Investments portfolio managers globally. We continue to develop information on the requirements of the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth) and the need to specifically consider Modern Slavery risks.

The ongoing development and provision of periodic training on Modern Slavery risks will be managed by the Russell Investments Australian Compliance team.

Assessment of our Modern Slavery Program

The Russell Investments Australia Modern Slavery working group meets periodically to assess the effectiveness of our Modern Slavery program. Criteria used for this assessment and preliminary results from the 2022 calendar year are shown below:

CRITERIA	RESULTS / ACTIONS TAKEN
Review of responses by money managers to both initial and ongoing Modern Slavery due diligence questions.	Results of money manager due diligence reporting on questions of Modern Slavery are reviewed quarterly by Australian Compliance.
Review and assessment of the results of ESG and Modern Slavery specific partnerships with industry groups and money managers.	In late 2022 Russell Investments joined IAST APAC. The decision to join IAST APAC was made based on the knowledge that membership would both improve our knowledge regarding the incidence of Modern Slavery in our Investment Supply Chain, and assist us to more effectively engage with investee companies to identify and address potential Modern Slavery incidences.
Review of the development and performance of the Modern Slavery programs of key suppliers in the Operations Supply Chain.	Within the Operations Supply Chain, Modern Slavery is discussed and assessed as part of our engagement with key suppliers. This is done through review of the supplier's Modern Slavery statement where available, or in response to Russell Investments Australia Compliance questions. For this third reporting year, suppliers seem largely in the process of bedding down governance and procedural processes implemented in the second reporting period. We consider that our suppliers are developing appropriately at this stage.
Raising awareness of Modern Slavery risk and Russell Investments obligations and actions in this area.	A presentation on the topic of Modern Slavery and Russell Investments responsibilities under the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth) was given to all Russell Investments Australia associates during the year. This included some of the actions taken to address the risk of Modern Slavery.
