Our Supply Chain

Modern slavery risks in our operations & supply chains

Following consultation, a modern slavery risk assessment of our operations and supply chains of the key risk areas identified was completed.

We acknowledge that the risks of modern slavery may be heightened in some of our groups supply chains and operations as a result of geographical location of some of our suppliers and the materials used in products supplied to us. In particular, products or materials sourced in South East Asia.

It is also acknowledged that being in the construction industry (high risk industry), there is a risk of being directly linked to modern slavery practices due to the labour used by other businesses on site.

Addressing modern slavery risks

Over this reporting period, the Climatech Group of companies have made a group wide commitment to significantly progress the actions we take to address modern slavery risks associated with our operations and supply chains.

To ensure modern slavery risks are mitigated in our operations and supply chains, we have implemented and enforced effective systems and controls. These include: reviewing and where necessary updating internal policies and procedures, introducing a notice specifically related to modern slavery in requests for tenders & quotations and engaging more with subcontractors and suppliers to strengthen the qualification process, and auditing subcontractors to ensure they adhere to their requirements while performing their work.

Climatech Group have a strong focus on improving staff and subcontractor awareness of modern slavery risks through awareness raising training and provide employees and subcontractors with a safe method to report any instance or suspected instance of improper conduct, including but not limited to modern slavery through our whistle-blower policy.

Assessing the effectiveness of these actions

To measure the effectiveness of these actions, we have implemented annual meetings with our Senior Leadership Team (SLT) to discuss our modern slavery risks and how we can improve our control measures as an organisation.

If we notice changes within our operations and supply chain, the working group will re-evaluate our risk assessment and look for ways to continuously improve our processes and risk management.

Consultation

Each entity within the Group plays an integral role in mitigating our risk of involvement in modern slavery. This Statement was prepared in consultation with each reporting entity referred to in section 'Our Structure'.

That consultation was facilitated by engaging key members of the Senior Leadership Team (SLT) and People & Culture (P&C) division and will continue to take place on an annual basis to promote collaboration across the Group, and continuous improvement.

The reporting entities have a common Chief Executive Officer and overlapping directors, who reviewed this Statement prior to its endorsement by the Board.

Approval

I confirm this Statement was approved by the Board of Directors of Climatech Group of Companies.
