This document is the Modern Slavery Statement of the reporting entity Cobram Estate Olives Limited ACN 115 131 667 (“Cobram Estate Olives” or “the Company”) in compliance with the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth), for the year ending 30 June 2021. Cobram Estate Olives comprises a number of wholly owned subsidiaries. In this statement, ‘Modern Slavery’ has the meaning given in the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth).

Cobram Estate Olives is committed to a program of continuous improvement. Our processes, policies and actions are intended to prevent and remediate Modern Slavery and protect human rights. To this end, we have Modern Slavery policies and processes in our operations and supply chains, including a publicly available Modern Slavery Policy. Amongst other things, this statement details the steps we have taken to understand, mitigate and address human rights and Modern Slavery risks within our structure, operations, and supply chains.

The process of preparing this statement involved the participation of a wide range of internal stakeholders across the Cobram Estate Olives business. The statement has been approved by the Cobram Estate Olives Board of Directors (Board).

Introduction

At Cobram Estate Olives we are committed to respecting human rights across our operations. The human rights of our people and everyone who connects to our business, either directly or indirectly, is of paramount importance to us. We recognise that our people are our greatest asset - this influences everything we do as a business and our core values of passion, honesty, and humility.

OUR VALUES

At Cobram Estate Olives, our core values are not intended to be feel-good catch phrases. All are of equal importance, and together they are embedded in the character of our organisation and anyone who represents us. They describe the collective behaviours of our company and what is important to us. They are a lot more than just words on a page. Our core values represent who we are – not who we want to be. Our values represent how we built this company, and they embody the day-to-day reality of how we do business.

Structure, operations, and supply chains

This section describes the reporting entity's structure, operations, and supply chains.

Structure

Cobram Estate Olives is a public company listed on the Australian Securities Exchange (ASX: CBO) with a head office in Lara, Victoria. Its structure and governance is as set out in its publicly available Corporate Governance Statement. The Company has more than 150 employees across Australia and the United States of America (USA), with operations conducted through our wholly owned subsidiary companies, who themselves own the necessary assets.

Formerly known as Boundary Bend Limited, Cobram Estate Olives was founded by Paul Riordan and Rob McGavin in 1998. Over the years, Cobram Estate Olives has grown to become the market leader in the Australian olive oil industry and a leader in sustainable olive farming, with operations in Australia and the USA and a portfolio of premium brands. The Company's extra virgin olive oils are recognised for their world class quality, receiving 458 awards since 2003.

The achievement of a sustainable "zero waste" farming operation and the maximisation of the value of all its farming outputs is one of the Company's fundamental pillars. As part of this initiative, in 2017 Cobram Estate Olives established its Wellness division which is responsible for the research, development and sale of products left over from olive oil production. This is a core part of the Company's strategy to continually improve the sustainability of its farming operations and minimise waste.

With an unwavering focus on superior quality, innovation, and customer satisfaction through all facets of our business, Cobram Estate Olives has developed a reputation as a leading player in the modern olive industry.

Operations

Today, Cobram Estate Olives is Australia's largest olive farmer with planted grove area of 6,584 hectares (over 2.4 million olive trees) that produced an estimated 71% of Australia's total olive oil production in 2021. In total, Cobram Estate Olives owns 18,677 hectares of freehold farmland, of which 16,700 hectares is freehold farmland in central and northwest Victoria and southwest New South Wales.

Cobram Estate Olives operates a fully integrated business model which is unsurpassed in the Australian olive industry. In taking a 'tree-to-table' approach to olive growing and marketing, we manage all aspects of the olive life cycle and ensure that every bottle or tin of extra virgin olive oil we produce meets our high standards. We also own Australia's largest olive tree nursery, three olive oil mills, and two bottling and storage facilities.

In California, USA, the Company has established an olive mill, storage and bottling facility, laboratory, and administration offices, and has 305 hectares of owned and leased groves, olive supply contracts with over 20 Californian olive growers. The first harvest of California olives from Company owned groves was in 2017.

Employees

For this reporting period, 01 July 2020 to 30 June 2021, Cobram Estate Olives has more than 150 employees across Australia and the USA. Our operations are conducted through our wholly owned subsidiary companies, who themselves own the necessary assets. Employees of Cobram Estate Olives are engaged pursuant to written employment agreements. Cobram Estate Olives also uses labour hire workers, who are provided by reputable labour hire providers.

To help protect the human rights of our employees and labour hire staff, we pay close attention to the following:

How we recruit

We are committed to attracting and selecting high-calibre talent. This is achieved by having a rigorous selection process through which applicants are assessed against measurable criteria that is relevant to success factors and traits required for the specific position and by the Company in general. We conduct checks on candidates prior to making an offer of employment, including whether they have legal rights to work in the specific country. Further, in our recruitment processes, we avoid unlawful discrimination (i.e. less favourable treatment due to any attribute protected under anti-discrimination or equal opportunity laws).

How we reward our people

We benchmark remuneration packages against the external market and are committed to a fair and competitive approach, in line with market practice. At a minimum we meet all relevant award requirements. With a transparent, fair, and equitable remuneration outcome in mind for all team members we analyse our remuneration data annually. Pay decisions are reflective of performance (both the individual and the Company). We are mindful that conscious or unconscious bias can occur so we put in place processes to reduce the risk that may occur, for example, in relation to a team members' gender, age, race, or sexual orientation.

How we encourage people to speak up

We conduct engagement surveys with employees. These surveys allow us to collect feedback, insights and encourage everyone to have the courage to speak up and be heard. These surveys can be completed both anonymously and not. There are a range of grievance mechanisms open to employees, including complaints procedures to use in the event of harassment, discrimination, and bullying.

Indirect workforce

Our indirect workforce is engaged through several suppliers across our sites. For the reporting period, the total number of suppliers providing temporary and contract labour was three in Australia and between three and six in the USA (depending on the season/time of the year). To help protect the human rights of our indirect workforce, we pay particular attention to the selection and management of suppliers.

Procurement Supply Chain

As a business, we source materials and products from domestic and international suppliers. We have reviewed the suppliers where there is the potential risk of slavery being used in the manufacture of our products. Products that would fit under this category include glass bottles, cardboard canisters, caps, labels, chemicals, and plant and equipment made overseas. We have sought and received written assurance from the manufacturers of these products that they do not engage in Modern Slavery practices. We have established and maintain a database of the questions and answers given.

In delivering our products, we outsource transport to local carriers. Given the nature of regulation and licensing requirements in the transport industry in the areas in which we deliver our products, we have assessed the risk of slavery being used in this industry as low. Most of our orders go to large grocery chains that have strict licensing and transport guidelines. If, for example, the load weights are not spread properly across the truck, orders will be rejected. Drivers also must be inducted before they can unload onsite.

It is important to us to use transport companies that have a proven safety record and a commitment to maintaining equipment. The selection of our transport suppliers is assessed using criteria which includes these key areas. Taking shortcuts is not acceptable and we would choose another carrier if we discovered this were occurring.

Risk of Modern Slavery practices

This section describes the risk of Modern Slavery practices in the operations and supply chains of the reporting entity and any entities it owns or controls.

Cobram Estate Olives' operations span across Victoria and southwest New South Wales in Australia, and California in the USA. We source products from Australian and international suppliers, who in turn have local and international supply chains. Given the large number and geographic diversity of stakeholders operating across the supply chain, Cobram Estate Olives recognises there is potential across this complex and dynamic environment for slavery and human trafficking to occur.

In horticulture, the types of slavery we have identified as being most likely are forced labour and slavery.

We recognise the horticultural sector has a high reliance on migrant workers, many of whom may have limited understanding of English and who may be less aware of their human and labour rights. These workers are primarily undertaking seasonal tasks (i.e. picking and packing work) and are often employed under temporary or casual employment arrangements. Workers may be on temporary visas, with some of these visa categories in Australia binding an employee to a specific employer for the duration of their stay. The Australian Government's Seasonal Worker Program is one such category.

Unlike many other large companies in the agribusiness space, we grow, harvest, manufacture and sell most of our products ourselves in Australia. Approximately 85% of the olive oil we sell comes directly from our farms, with the remainder purchased from our partnered growers. We pride ourselves on our working conditions across all stages of production. We want to provide our customers with quality assurance and operate as a responsible business. As a result, in our Australian operations, where we directly recruit workers, the risk of Modern Slavery occurring is very low. However, we recognize that where we have indirect relationships with workers, for example in the USA where we partner with over 20 third-party growers to grow the olives which we then harvest, there is more of a risk of Modern Slavery.

Cobram Estate Olives has identified several key areas where there is considered to be a heightened risk of Modern Slavery, including:

- where Cobram Estate Olives obtains labour from labour hire companies;
- where Cobram Estate Olives sources services and goods directly or indirectly from geographical regions identified to have a high prevalence of Modern Slavery;
- outsourcing of services involving low skilled or unskilled labour is used and/or where recruitment/labour is outsourced, such as cleaning services;
- sourcing goods internationally from suppliers who outsource their labour used in production; and
- sourcing product from partner grower farms which have their own labour or outsource labour.

Modern Slavery risks, due diligence, and remediation

This section describes the actions taken by the reporting entity and any entities it owns or controls to assess and address these risks, including due diligence and remediation processes.

Labour Hire Providers

Contracts for Australian labour hire providers are being updated to include Cobram Estate Olives' Modern Slavery expectations. Labour hire licensing schemes have been introduced in several Australian states to regulate the labour hire sector, including Queensland, Victoria, and South Australia. We require providers to be registered with the applicable labour hire regulator in relevant jurisdictions.

Contracts for USA labour hire providers are also being reviewed to refer to Cobram Estate Olives' Modern Slavery expectations.

All labour hire providers in Australia and the USA will be issued with updated contracts in 2022 to add further checks for Modern Slavery and human rights.

As a result of COVID-19, labour sourcing challenges have led to a further review of our labour hire providers. We have worked with our existing providers to mitigate risks associated with COVID-19 (for further detail, please see section 'Responding to COVID-19') and assessed suitability of new providers through enhanced on-boarding procedures.

Procurement

To ensure we are using reputable suppliers we maintain a database based around questions & answers given concerning Modern Slavery. Old and new suppliers are required to satisfy our policy in line with any updates to the Modern Slavery laws. Internally, we plan to conduct annual audits to track our performance with Modern Slavery requirements.

While we are confident in the suppliers we use, there is still a risk of being given misleading information. In some minor instances, we use an intermediary / broker to arrange production and orders we do not deal directly with the manufacturer. In these cases, we rely on the broker to give assurances that Modern Slavery is not occurring in connection with the manufacture of our goods. It has not been reasonably practicable to inspect all manufacturing sites during COVID-19, particularly those located internationally. Instead, enhancement to our contracts and questionnaires and more regular audits of our processes going forward will allow for a better understanding of, and greater confidence in, our suppliers' processes.

Training and Communication

Due to Covid-19 restrictions we have not been able to conduct in-person training, so we have used a variety of methods to increase awareness and build capacity in understanding Modern Slavery. These include:

- Whistleblower Policy and training has been communicated to all staff members. An independent Whistleblower Officer is available as an avenue for reporting suspected misconduct, including forced labour. Contact details of the Officer are available to all staff as outlined in the policy.
- Internal communication channels including newsletters and email communication providing information on Modern Slavery issues.
- Key management and HR staff trained in Modern Slavery Act requirements.
- Cobram Estate Olives' online Learning Management System includes a suite of relevant courses including Combatting Modern Slavery, Discrimination and Equal Employment Opportunity, Risk Management, Global Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption Information Disclosures for Corporate Whistleblowers and Cultural Awareness. All courses are part of the standard induction process for new workers and processes in place for existing staff to complete the training.

Responding to COVID-19

We recognise the COVID-19 pandemic has increased the risk of vulnerability of our workforce and labour supplied through labour hire contractors. Border closures and travel restrictions have left some workers displaced from their home countries.
