Modern Slavery Risks

Modern slavery describes situations where coercion, threats or deception are used to exploit victims and undermine or deprive them of their freedom.

We understand that modern slavery can take many forms but fundamentally is a range of exploitive practices including human trafficking, forced labour, servitude, deceptive recruiting and child labour. These modern slavery practices can occur in any industry or sector, causing grave abuses of human rights and distorting global markets. Thus, we have an important role to play to eradicate any forms of modern slavery.

POSCO WA also has a responsibility to respect human rights, as outlined in the United Nations Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights. This responsibility includes taking action to prevent, mitigate and, where appropriate, remedy modern slavery in our business operations and supply chains.

During the reporting period, we were committed to identify any inherent risks of modern slavery practices and the potential for our entity to cause, contribute to, or be directly linked to modern slavery through its operations and supply chains. The following factors were considered in evaluating the risk of modern slavery in our operations and supply chain.

- Sector and Industry risks
- Product and service risks
- Geographic risks
- Entity risks

POSCO WA has assessed our direct operations and workforce as being of low risk to modern slavery due to the nature of its investment activities in Australia. Furthermore, our employees are primarily working in professional services in Australia, and they are covered by Enterprise Agreements, the Fair Work Act 2009, and relevant modern awards. Each of these mechanisms meets or exceeds the minimum entitlements prescribed under the National Employment Standards. We have also put in place various HR policies, modern slavery trainings, and due diligence processes as well as the Code of Conduct to help mitigate potential modern slavery risks relating to our broader operations.

Based on our initial risk assessment, POSCO WA is not aware of any inherent modern slavery risks occurring in its supply chains during the reporting period. However, we recognise the importance of addressing any potential areas of risks that may cause modern slavery practices in our investment activities including the suppliers we do not have a direct contractual relationship with. As determined through the assessment, our highest risk areas may be the indirect supply chain from the project operations that we invested.

Although POSCO WA is not required to individually monitor or report on each project operator and their supply chains. POSCO WA is determined to raise awareness of modern slavery risks and collaborate with our business partners to combat any forms of modern slavery risks.

POSCO WA does not tolerate modern slavery and will not knowingly engage with any consultants, suppliers or contractors that engage in modern slavery.

Our Commitment

POSCO observes and supports the globally recognised international human rights standards, such as the UDHR, the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights, the UN Global Compact Ten Principles, the OECD Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises, and the Fundamental Conventions of the International Labor Organization (ILO).

POSCO has made efforts to prevent human rights violations and to take adequate measures to prevent and address adverse human rights impacts that may occur in the course of its business management activities and business relations.

To prevent human rights violations and fulfill the company's human rights management, POSCO enacted the POSCO Human Rights Protection Guidelines on April 1, 2014 in accordance with the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights and its own Code of Ethics. This was renamed the POSCO Human Rights Protection Operational Guidelines on July 31, 2020, and reflected in the company's regulations.

Aligning with our parent company's Human Rights Management Guidelines, POSCO WA is also committed to follow POSCO's Human Rights management framework and processes in place to eradicate any modern slavery risks within its own business, in its supply chains and through other business relationships. POSCO WA is committed to the transparent disclosures of any inherent modern slavery risks in its Australian operations and supply chain in accordance with the Act to further mitigate the risks.

During this reporting period, we focused on the identification of inherent and potential modern slavery risks in our operations and supply chains and embraced the group wide approach to the management of Human Rights to have better control for the modern slavery risks associated within our operations and supply chains in Australia.

We are committed to continue in following POSCO's risk management framework to ensure we identify, address and assess modern slavery risks and review the effectiveness of the actions undertaken to mitigate modern slavery risks in our investment activities.

As part of its statement, POSCO WA reports on how it assesses and addresses modern slavery risks when making investment decisions by following POSCO's ESG risk processes and outlines a plan it has established for how it would respond to modern slavery risks identified through the ESG process. We have undertaken a number of actions to address these requirements and worked with POSCO in updating this Statement.

Actions Taken to Assess and Address Modern Slavery Risks

Our approach to modern slavery is group-wide. POSCO WA has undertaken a thorough review on the ‘social’ pillar of POSCO’s ESG strategies and management in order to assess and address any inherent and potential modern slavery risks within our operations and supply chains. As part of POSCO group, we have embraced key management activities on Human Rights risk management and process in our business operation and supply chains in Australia under POSCO Human Rights Protection Guidelines. This initiative highlights POSCO WA’s commitment to lead by example in the fight against modern slavery and will help to mitigate modern slavery risks.

Basic Position on Human Rights Management

In order to fulfill our responsibility with the aim of respecting human rights and meeting the expectations of our stakeholders, POSCO takes the following basic positions in relation to human rights management.

- POSCO observes relevant regulations and human rights standards in all places of business.
- When faced with conflicting local regulations, the company seeks ways to comply with international human rights standards.
- The risk of a severe violation of human rights is an important management issue at POSCO

As part of the strategy development, we progressed multiple initiatives designed to enhance our understanding of— and responses to—modern slavery risks during this reporting period. POSCO WA has made efforts to prevent violation of others’ human rights and to take adequate measures to prevent and address adverse human rights impacts that may occur in the course of performing business activities. The following list of actions introduces POSCO’s risk management frameworks that POSCO WA embraced as part of Human Rights management process.

Human Rights Due Diligence (HRDD) Process	POSCO conducts human rights due diligence when deemed necessary to identify, prevent, and mitigate negative impacts on human rights and fulfill its responsibilities. Human Rights Grievance Handling Process	As an effective means of remedy, POSCO offers a grievance handling program for its stakeholders. [File a grievance to: humanrights@posco.com]
Human Rights Policies and Procedures	POSCO has a suite of human right policies and procedures that form the foundations of how we manage the risks of modern slavery across our operations and in our supply chain. In addition to the Code of Ethics, the following policies and procedures as part of POSCO’s ESG Policies set our clear expectations to respect human rights, including in relation to modern slavery: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>▪ POSCO Safety and Health Policy</li> <li>▪ POSCO Human Rights Management Guidelines</li> <li>▪ POSCO Human Rights Policy</li> <li>▪ POSCO Sustainability Policy</li> <li>▪ POSCO Whistleblower Policy</li> <li>▪ POSCO’s Position on Human Resources (HR) and Labor</li> <li>▪ POSCO’s Position on Diversity, Equity and Inclusion</li> </ul> Additionally, the POSCO Supplier Code of Conduct (Code of Conduct) provides the basic rules that suppliers and subcontractors (collectively, Suppliers) that supply products and services to POSCO WA should follow. POSCO WA’s suppliers should create a safe workplace environment, treat employees with dignity and respect, and operate their business in an eco-friendly and ethical manner. To that end, the Code of Conduct encompasses the areas of E (environment), S (respect for human rights, mutual growth/social contribution,

	safety/health, trade secrets/ intellectual property protection, and quality management), and G (ethics/fair trade).
Training and Education Activities	Every January, the POSCO group and its partners make a pledge to comply with the Code of Ethics. Online and in-person training programs are offered to both employees to prevent human rights violations. For overseas offices, top management directly provides training to employees on human rights and ethics management to detect and prevent risks of human rights violations. POSCO WA believes that employees have an important role to play in combating modern slavery in our operations and supply chains. Our employees are constantly trained to human rights and ethics management to detect and prevent risks of human rights violations. Employee ethics training has been affirmed as part of POSCO's corporate culture since awareness raising, training and capacity building are important for both our employees and our supplier partners to be better equipped to identify and respond to human rights risks.
Human Rights Assessment	The Corporate Audit Office of POSCO has been conducting independent evaluations to prevent human rights risks and has offered suggestions for improvement to the relevant subsidiary. To evaluate the level of human rights management, POSCO WA performs self-assessments through a checklist developed by POSCO. The human rights assessment items consist of key items that help verify 11 human rights management activities, including the establishment of a human rights management system, non-discrimination in employment, guarantee of freedom of assembly and collective bargaining, and prohibition of forced and child labor. Overseas offices' assessment on human rights   This human right assessment scores will be forwarded to the Corporate Audit Office of the headquarter and used as the basis for internal training and improvement activities to further mitigate the human rights and modern slavery risks.
