

Modern Slavery Statement 2024

Jet Aviation Australia

Modern Slavery Statement

Introduction

This Modern Slavery Statement is made by Jet Aviation Australia Pty Ltd ACN 001 540 316 ("Jet Aviation") in accordance with the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth) (the "Act"). This Statement covers the reporting period of 1 January to 31 December 2024.

Jet Aviation operates around the world and recognizes the global nature of modern slavery risks and the importance of ensuring that respect for human rights and dignity is upheld and embedded at all levels of the business. Strict adherence to these values, as well as to applicable laws, are expected by us everywhere we operate. Jet Aviation does not tolerate any form of modern slavery anywhere within our business or supply chains. Throughout this Statement, the term "modern slavery" is used to refer to the various forms of coerced labour including forced labour, child labour, domestic servitude and human trafficking.

Structure, Operations & Supply Chains

Jet Aviation is a private company incorporated and based in Australia, providing aviation products and services across Australia, New Zealand, Asia Pacific and the Middle East. Assessment and Mitigation of Risks of Modern Slavery Practices in the Operations and Supply Chains

During the reporting period, Jet Aviation assessed its potential modern slavery risks across the products and services procured from direct suppliers taking into consideration a number of factors including:

- geographic location,
- industry and
- type of product and services.

Jet Aviation procures products and services from suppliers from different geographic locations which may pose a risk of exposure to modern slavery practices. However, a large portion of products and services were procured from suppliers located in Australia and other low risk countries. The nature of the products and services procured, being mostly related to aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul are assessed as low risk due to the highly majority of products and services procured during the reporting period were related to aircraft maintenance, repair and overhaul in a highly regulated industry the risk of modern slavery is assessed as low.

Jet Aviation takes steps to mitigate and address potential modern slavery risks in its supply chain, first in setting clear expectations of our suppliers in the General Dynamics Standards of Business Ethics and Conduct (the “Blue Book”), General Terms of Purchase and Payment (“General Terms”) and Supplier Code of Conduct. The General Terms and Supplier Code of Conduct require that suppliers confirm their compliance all applicable laws, regulations and policies in the country or countries in which they operate and/or services are provided. In addition to the Blue Book, General Terms (“General Terms”) and Supplier Code of Conduct, all suppliers undergo a standard and mandatory due diligence screening process although some suppliers decline to complete the process.

Jet Aviation’s employees are employed in accordance with applicable legislation and our policies and procedures. We also ensure that any recruitment agency or labour hire company we use for the placement of staff comply with applicable laws. Jet Aviation treats all of our employees and externally hired workers with dignity and respect and provide them with fair compensation and equal employment opportunity. We stand behind basic universal human rights, including that employment must be voluntary and oppose modern slavery and human trafficking in all forms.

Jet Aviation has a whistleblowing policy that provides a confidential mechanism for individuals to disclose concerns regarding modern slavery risks in Jet Aviation’s business. It is the responsibility of all employees to report immediately any concerns or suspicions that modern slavery practices may be present in any parts of our business or supply chain to their Manager, the Head of Legal, or the Ethics Officer.

Jet Aviation maintains robust ethics and compliance programs and provide all employees with regular training on the Blue Book.

Assessment of effectiveness of these actions and continued improvement

Jet Aviation is committed to continue to look for ways to best assess the effectiveness of our processes, recognizing that the assessment of the effectiveness of our actions to identify and address the modern slavery risks in our operations and supply chain is complex and ongoing
