The Company's direct supply chains are based in Australia and New Zealand; however, the Company recognises that its suppliers also source key "materials and labour" from countries including:

- China
- United Kingdom
- USA
- France
- Belgium
- South Korea

None of the above suppliers are known by the Company to have engaged in practices that are in breach of Australia's modern slavery legislation.

The Company's supply chains also include services ancillary to its operations, such as:

- Cleaning and security companies that service the Company's offices.
- Garden maintenance servicing for lawns and garden care.
- Filtered water supply.
- Bathroom services.

Modern slavery risk assessment

The identification of modern slavery risks in the Company's operations and supply chains is a primary concern for the Company. The Company's commitment to its Modern Slavery Policy and emphasis on human rights compliance is a key focus for the Company, together with its continued and sustained commitment to adhering to the principles and obligations under the Modern Slavery Act.

Given the size and mature nature of the Australian and New Zealand markets in which the Company operates, the Company considers the risk of exposure to modern slavery within its business and supply chains to be low. However, the Company remains alert to such risks and is consistently verifying and auditing its suppliers with a view to addressing such risks, should they arise.

The Company's supplier agreements require suppliers to comply with all applicable laws, including the Modern Slavery Act, and requires suppliers to agree that they have not, to their knowledge, sourced materials from suppliers that have participated in conduct constituting modern slavery and/or human trafficking.

The Company's employees are advised to pay particular attention to suppliers that provide products and or services from higher risk areas and must immediately report any concerns to the relevant Executive Manager, who is required to promptly investigate and take appropriate action in relation to such reports.

The Company has developed a number of policies that are designed to combat any unethical conduct within its business and supply. These policies include, but are not limited to:

- Modern Slavery Policy;
- Whistleblower Policy;
- ISO27001 Complaint Information Security Management Systems;
- Conflict of Interest Policy; and
- Equal Opportunity and Anti-Discrimination Policy.

The Company expects its suppliers to share its commitment to human rights and its zero-tolerance approach to modern slavery. The use of forced or slave labour, whether in the form of indentured, bonded or prison labour, by any entity within the Company's business and supply chain is prohibited. Additionally, support of human trafficking of involuntary labour through threat, force, fraudulent claims, or any other form of coercion is also prohibited. Where it is found that a supplier has breached this expectation, the Company will terminate its relationship with that supplier.

The Company also expects its suppliers to comply with its Code of Ethics.

The Company is committed to continually monitoring and reviewing its policies and procedures to prevent any form of modern-day slavery and/or human trafficking from occurring in its business or supply chain.

Sector and industry risks

The Company operates predominantly in the retail and construction sector, which is interlinked with certain risks. Through its policies and corporate obligations, the Company has identified the following areas in its operations and supply chains that may pose risks:

- labour rights, including forced or compulsory labour, wages and benefits, work hours and child labour (including unskilled, temporary or seasonal labour);
- health and safety (for workers that the Company does not control (or who are otherwise engaged in operations outside of the Company's control)); and

- Fraudulent claims of compliance

Geographic risks

The Company's commitment to delivering floor coverings involves certain 'geographic risks' to modern slavery practices. The Company understands that the countries in which it operates and/or sources products and services may not be subject to the modern slavery standards that apply in Australia. In this regard, the Company identifies the following risks:

- Third party providers to the supply chain of vetted partners
