Modern slavery risks in operations and supply chain

We recognise there are risks OFX may cause, contribute to, or be directly linked to modern slavery across our supply chain and our operations.

These risks can arise:

1. as an employer;
2. as a purchaser of goods and services – if modern slavery is involved in the production or delivery of those goods or services; and
3. as a financial services provider – if our financial products are used for activities that involve modern slavery.

Our employees

The risk of exploited labour within a workforce tends to be higher in countries where there is higher risk of modern slavery and in the case of low skilled, indirect employment arrangements. We have assessed the risk of modern slavery within our people as low for several reasons.

As of 31 March 2025

100%

OFX employees are based in countries ranked at the lower end of modern slavery prevalence*

More than

93%

OFX employees are permanent employees

*Ranking based on the Global Slavery Index published by the Walk Free Foundation

Most of our people, including temporary employees and those engaged through labour hire arrangements, are qualified or skilled in financial services, technology or other professional support functions.

Team members who are engaged in an unskilled role, usually for those in their first corporate position or whilst studying, are usually contracted for a period of 6+ months or, less commonly, for a specific project, to ensure certainty of employment. This, in combination with our employee policies, and an annual remuneration review (to ensure that we are paying at or above award wages and at market rates) ensures that there is no risk to our employees of modern slavery occurring in our business.

Our supply chain

In evaluating the potential or perceived risks of modern slavery, OFX considered the following factors with our suppliers:

Industry risk

Supply of a good or service from an industry where modern slavery may be directly or indirectly present in the supply chain including:

- whether the industry has predominantly base skill or migrant workers;
- whether a high proportion of businesses in the industry utilise labour hire;
- outsourcing or third-party contracting arrangements; and
- the nature of the product and service.

Geographical risk

Suppliers based in a high-risk geography (per the Global Slavery Index) including:

- levels of corruption;
- the population's skill or education levels; and
- rule of law and strength of human rights or labour laws.

Annual spend

Those suppliers who have:

- a significant annual spend; and
- at least one additional medium or high-risk factor.

The following sectors are considered high risk for modern slavery in the OFX supply chain:

- Technology - hardware, software and cloud services.
- Information, communications.
- Office consumables.
- Marketing.
- Promotional merchandise.

- Property services - including facilities management, utilities, cleaning, waste management and security.
- Staff procurement.
- Business process offshoring.

We consider the potential for exposure to modern slavery and human trafficking in these sectors is specifically through:

- office consumables such as tea, coffee, sugar, cocoa and fruit;
- cleaning services employed by building owners or facilities managers for buildings occupied by OFX;
- purchase of corporate clothing; and
- purchase of office hardware and electronics.

OFX identified 6 higher risk supplier in FY2025 and these supplier was subject to enhanced due diligence.

Our clients

OFX facilitates payment for many businesses and individuals around the world. We are particularly aware of the potential for our financial products to be used in financing modern slavery. This risk is closely tied to the risk of our products being used for money laundering and terrorism financing.

The risk of financing modern slavery is therefore somewhat reduced by OFX not operating in certain countries which are subject to sanctions or high risk for money laundering and terrorism financing. It is also reduced by the extensive identity verification requirements as part of our client due diligence that limits identity fraud and the corresponding risk of withheld wages and debt bondage.

Our approach

OFX developed our approach by consulting the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth), Modern Slavery Act 2015 (UK) and Global Slavery Index published by Walk Free Foundation.

Actions taken to assess and address modern slavery risk

Our policies

We are committed to assessing and updating our policies and procedures to help eradicate modern slavery from our supply chain and ensure it is not in any part of our business. We have implemented policies and procedures to realise this commitment. These policies and procedures are also regularly assessed for their effectiveness and updated as required.

Key OFX Group policies relevant to modern slavery risk management include:

- OFX Code of Conduct;
- Whistleblower Policy; and
- Anti-Bribery & Corruption Policy.

Training on these policies is provided periodically and employees, contractors, and directors are required to confirm their understanding of the policy requirements on commencement of employment and annually thereafter.

Specific online training is also provided on modern slavery to employees on commencement of employment and periodically thereafter. In FY2025, we had a 99.28% completion rate by employees assigned the modern slavery-specific training.

Modern slavery risk is further managed by internal company policies, including our Remuneration Policy, which ensures that all employees receive fair compensation for their work and our Anti-Money Laundering and Counter Terrorism Financing Policy, which provides a framework for our AML/CTF program.

Each of these policies is regularly reviewed:

- The OFX Code of Conduct was reviewed in September 2025.
- The Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy was reviewed in September 2025.
- The Whistleblower Policy was reviewed in September 2025.

Contractual mechanisms

Employees and individual contractors are required to comply with OFX policies, including the OFX Modern Slavery Statement which explicitly prohibits the direct or indirect use of modern slavery in work conducted for OFX.

Where possible we include provisions in our contracts with suppliers that requires that they do not engage in modern slavery and require them to notify us if they become aware of any incident or complaint that it has engaged in modern slavery. OFX will typically have the right to terminate contractual relationships where there has been a breach of this provision.

Due diligence

We maintain experienced and highly capable compliance teams in each of our key regions to support OFX in ensuring we understand our local regulatory requirements, understand indicators of modern slavery and have effective compliance programs in place.

These compliance programs require new and existing clients to provide specific information to verify their identity on an ongoing basis for the duration of the relationship. Based on this information we make informed decisions to onboard and continue to service only those clients of a suitable risk profile.

Financial crime controls are consistently tracked and discussed at management, executive and Board levels. We undergo regular independent assessments through audits of our AML programs, compliance reviews and regulatory reviews.

Our Vendor Management Policy establishes a comprehensive framework for managing supplier relationships and associated risks, including modern slavery. As part of supplier onboarding, all prospective suppliers undergo a detailed risk assessment which as it relates to modern slavery includes consideration of geographic and industry related risks. Where there is a higher risk due to a supplier's location and the category of goods/services, a specific modern slavery assessment is conducted by our compliance teams before the supplier is onboarded.

Reporting mechanisms

OFX's Whistleblower Policy, publicly available on the OFX website and covered in OFX employee onboarding, outlines how actual or suspected modern slavery in OFX operations and supply chains can be reported by employees and associates (and their relatives), and suppliers. A free, confidential and easy-to-access independent reporting website or hotline is available in each region and globally.

Remediation

We are committed to investigating any reported concerns or incidents and, if those concerns are substantiated, taking appropriate steps to address the issues raised. We are also committed to maintaining the integrity of the reporting and investigation processes.

All substantiated incidents of modern slavery will be formally documented, investigated and reported to the Chief Legal Officer, and at least annually to the Audit, Risk and Compliance Committee.

We are committed to being open and transparent should any modern slavery incidents be substantiated and, where possible, we will report on the outcomes and remediation actions in future Modern Slavery Statements.

Assessing Effectiveness

We are committed to monitoring the effectiveness of our approach to preventing modern slavery and improving our approach to advancing human rights.

We review and assess the effectiveness of our policies, codes and standards regularly as part of the OFX Risk Management Framework.

In FY2025, our performance with respect to these key performance indicators (KPIs) was:

0

Actual or suspected modern slavery
incidents

99.28%

Completion rate by employees assigned modern slavery training

6

Higher risk suppliers on whom we performed enhanced
due diligence

Our targets

For FY2026, we will continue to monitor the following areas to improve our progress:

- the number of actual or suspected modern slavery incidents raised through our reporting mechanisms under our Whistleblower Policy;
- the proportion of our people who have undertaken training on modern slavery training upon onboarding, and retraining as required; and
- the number of suppliers in high-risk suppliers for modern slavery, and where we will have undertaken enhanced due diligence.

OFX will also continue to drive internal awareness of modern slavery amongst OFX employees through ongoing training. Increased awareness is important to OFX because it is aligned to its ESG commitments and because it ensures employees are alert to and can act on any possible instances of modern slavery impacting our clients or suppliers.

Governance and consultation

Governance

Human rights risks, including modern slavery, are considered within our broader ESG approach which is described in the OFX Annual Report 2025. OFX's risk management and compliance practices also provide oversight and management of these risks, including:

Compliance and Legal teams	The OFX Compliance and Legal teams are tasked with assessing and addressing risks of modern slavery practices across our operations and supply chain.
Implementation	The OFX Compliance teams are responsible for ensuring ongoing training and awareness raising for OFX employees is in place with respect to modern slavery. The OFX Legal and People & Culture teams are responsible for managing cases of any breach of the Modern Slavery Statement 2025.
CLO and CRO	The Chief Legal Officer and the Chief Risk Officer report as required into the Audit, Risk and Compliance Committee (the ARCC)
ARCC	The Audit, Risk and Compliance Committee oversee OFX's risk management framework and systems, including systems and procedures for compliance with legal and regulatory requirements. The ARCC report to the OFX Board.
Board	The OFX Board are ultimately responsible for oversight of OFX's modern slavery risk.

Consultation

While legislative obligations relating to modern slavery and human trafficking may only apply to certain entities within the OFX Group, OFX recognises that as a truly global business servicing clients worldwide and as a significant purchaser of goods and services we have a responsibility and opportunity to help eradicate modern slavery and human trafficking. As a result, OFX addresses modern slavery compliance at a global level.

OFX's global operating model means that, in most cases, a single supplier is used for supply in connection with OFX operations irrespective of the jurisdiction. This global operating model also means that the executive with oversight of a particular function has visibility to all relevant suppliers irrespective of the entity that is procuring the relevant goods or services.

Our Global Executive Team assisted to compile and endorse this Statement.

The OFX Group Limited Board approved this statement on 17 September 2025 and committed to review it again in FY2026.
