3. Policy and Initiatives Regarding the Prevention of Slave Labor and Human Trafficking

In preparing this statement, the Company consulted and collaborated with the Group companies it owns or controls.

Our measures and actions are listed below:

1) Establishment of a Human Rights Risk Monitoring System

We incorporated human rights risks into the Compliance Committee's risk management system. The committee is composed of management members and oversees group-wide activities.

2) The Osaki Group's Charter of Corporate Behavior

The Osaki Group states in "The Osaki Group's Charter of Corporate Behavior" outlining the guidelines for corporate behavior, that the group shall "conduct business that respects the human rights of all persons and take no part in any discriminatory action at all phases of our businesses," "pursue work practices that help our employees to develop their career and capabilities and provide them with fair working conditions and opportunities to grow professionally," and "build effective corporate governance system for the conduct of business, strive to raise awareness of the Charter's principle throughout the group, and encourage behavior in its supply chain based on the principle of this Charter."

3) Compliance rules / instruction manuals

The “Compliance Manual” outlining operational guidelines in accordance with the Osaki Group’s Charter of Corporate Behavior, specifies “Compliance with legal requirements,” “Respect for human rights and prohibition of discrimination,” “Prohibition of harassment,” “Safety and health in the workplace,” and “Compliance with labor laws.” In addition, the handbook for this manual, “The Osaki Group’s Compliance Handbook” (“EDMI General Compliance Rule” within the EDMI Group) is utilized for the education of group employees.

4) Internal Audit Response

The Company added 5 items related to human rights protection to the Risk Self-Inspection list. In FY2022, self-inspection was carried out based on the list at OSAKI Electric and its group companies, and found no evidence of wrongful doings. We continue to conduct self-inspection across OSAKI Electric and its group companies.

EDMI conducted a self-inspection on human rights violation at its main manufacturing site in November, 2022 and found no evidence of wrongful doings. EDMI will formulate company regulations with regards to human rights protection and will conduct on-site inspections at their manufacturing plants in accordance with the regulations.

5) Establishment of a helpline

The Osaki Group has established a reporting system through a helpline (whistle blowing) that serves as the contact for reports and consultations including those relating to human rights for all group employees both within and outside Japan, with the aim of identifying and correcting any issues at an early stage. Within Japan, we have also established an external reporting contact through a third-party institution to allow reports to be made anonymously. In addition, whistle-blowers are protected by stipulating that the termination of employment or any other disadvantageous treatment on the grounds of such reports is prohibited.

6) Supply chain management

The Company formulated a Basic Procurement Policy that incorporates the content of human rights compliance disclosed in the Policy on our website in FY2022. We encourage our supplier to acknowledge and comply with the policy the OSAKI group announced.

We have also incorporated questions related human rights in the survey sent to our suppliers. We will further address on the confirmation of no human rights violation in the supply chain at quality audits by adding audit items related to human rights protection.

EDMI Group has formulated risk management rules for the process of selecting business partners. Accordingly, EDMI completed investigation on top 40 customers with regards to human rights violations, and we received responses from 80% of the customers in subject. Out of those responded, 90% were aware of the Modern Slavery Act and have conducted employee training, 70% conducts audit regularly. EDMI Group will continue to carry out an investigation on suppliers with business transaction over US 100, 000 dollars. EDMI plans to add audit items relating to human rights protection during regular supplier or outsourcer audits. Furthermore, EDMI will identify suppliers at countries and regions where human rights risks are considered high and plans to carry out onsite inspections of the suppliers in those countries and regions.

Through these surveys described the above, no case of forced labor, child labor, or trafficking in the supply chain has been recognized at this time.

As for other group companies, we will continue to consider effective methods in assessing the issue.

We will continue to assess the effectiveness of the Group's human rights risk management and appropriately identify human rights risks in the supply chain by continuing to implement the initiatives described above,

7) Training and education

In aim to enhance employee awareness, an article on human rights was published in an in-house magazine. Furthermore, educational programs on human rights were provided to employees of domestic Group companies.

The Company conducted an anti-harassment online training course all managers and higher. We carried out actions to raise awareness for human rights among employees by issuing educational booklets which include self-check for human rights protection on the in-house intranet. The printed booklets were circulated among employees at the group companies. We will continue to expand training on human rights groupwide.

ENEGATE, a domestic group company, conducts human rights education every year and continues its efforts to raise awareness on the human rights issues. In FY2022, ENEGATE included human rights policy to the Charter of Behaviors and posted various articles with related topics to their internal in-house newsletters.

EDMI group conducted human rights training including educating code of conducts and the modern slavery act to their employees. In FY2022, 90% of all employees have taken the training course. EDMI regularly hosts training programs for those employees who have not completed the training or those who have joined EDMI recently. EDMI is committed to provide human rights education to its employees to further raise human rights awareness among the group.
