Acknowledgment of country

Jumbo would like to acknowledge the Turrbal and Yuggara People, the traditional custodians of the land on which our global business was founded. We pay our respects to elders past and present, the keepers and storytellers of First Nations customs and culture.

Across the seas, we would also like to acknowledge the Blackfoot Confederacy, including the Siksika, Piikani and Kainai Nations; the Stoney-Nakoda Nation; and the Tsuut'ina Nation, upon whose land our subsidiary, Stride Management Corp, operates.

2. Modern slavery risks in the reporting entity's operations and supply chains

We continued to assess modern slavery risk in our operations and supply chains during the reporting period using two considerations, namely reviewing top suppliers by spend (key suppliers) and then identifying suppliers who may be considered as being higher risk due to the jurisdiction or industry in which they operate or the product or service they supply. Following the finalisation of business acquisitions in Canada and the UK, this assessment is undertaken across all businesses within the Group.

Our key suppliers represent large, multinational technology, marketing and professional services businesses who generally employ a skilled workforce. Despite the level of skill of a key supplier's workforce, we appreciate the potential for second tier risk from some key suppliers, particularly those within the technology space, given the breadth of their workforce across numerous jurisdictions. However, following an assessment during the reporting period of these key suppliers' approach to modern slavery risk mitigation, the nature of the product they supply and the jurisdiction and industry within which they operate, we have assessed that the residual risk of modern slavery in our direct business operations from key suppliers to be low.

In respect of other suppliers, we continue to acknowledge that exposure to modern slavery risk in our supply chain may be higher due to the jurisdiction or industry in which those suppliers operate or the product or service they supply. This increased risk is primarily concentrated within suppliers who support our Group function and during the reporting period we have found suppliers identified as having medium risk of modern slavery, or potential second tier risk, within the following areas of supply:

- Food, beverage, and kitchen consumables;
- Technical employee outsourcing arrangements;
- Ticket printing; and
- Computer and technical equipment providers.

However, we have assessed that the residual risk of modern slavery in our direct business operations from other suppliers to be low.

3. Actions taken to assess and address modern slavery risks

Following Jumbo's first Modern Slavery Statement in 2022 and the implementation of a three-year roadmap for identifying and minimising modern slavery risk in our supply chain, we have made progress within this reporting period by focussing on maturing and embedding policies and procedures within our businesses. During the reporting period, we have undertaken the following initiatives across the Group:

1. Mapped the upstream supply chains for Stride Management Corporation, our Canadian businesses which was acquired in June 2022.
2. Developed and introduced a new supplier onboarding process inclusive of a consideration of risk of modern slavery (including assessment of the jurisdiction or industry in which they operate or the product or service they supply).
3. Implemented standardised training on modern slavery risk for employees of the Group.
4. Reviewed our Whistleblower Policy, Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy, Workplace Health and Safety Policy and Code of Conduct to ensure they align with modern slavery risk mitigation practices.
5. Adopted the use of a third-party whistleblower reporting service as a mechanism for raising grievances regarding modern slavery.

4. Assessing the effectiveness of actions taken

During the reporting period, we sought to measure the effectiveness of the initiatives introduced to manage modern slavery risks through the following means:

- Audit trails and reporting statistics on the implementation and completion of modern slavery risk training for relevant employees.
- Creation of supplier register which tracks new suppliers across the Group.
- Binding requirement for the provision of supplier identification numbers within the contracting process, indicating that the supplier has been assessed against the supplier onboarding process.
- Implementation of a review process for legacy suppliers to ensure sufficient consideration of modern slavery risk is included when re-engaging legacy suppliers.
- Continuous monitoring and assessment of controls by the Internal Audit team.

5. The process of consultation with subsidiary entities in preparing the modern slavery statement

During the reporting period, we engaged with key stakeholders within operating subsidiaries such as members of the Legal, Risk, Finance, Product, Operations, and Infrastructure teams to better understand their relevant supply chains and identify key suppliers, including those within our recently acquired (for the purposes of this reporting year) Canadian subsidiary. This included an assessment of legacy suppliers and the creation of a heat map of suppliers' modern slavery exposure based on jurisdiction or industry in which they operate or the product or service they supply.

This statement was approved by the Board of Jumbo Interactive Limited on 30 November 2023 and is signed by Mike Veverka, Chief Executive Officer and Executive Director of Jumbo Interactive.
