Risks of Modern Slavery

Our focus in 2020 was to strengthen our understanding of potential modern slavery risks within our operations and supply chain. The construction industry is considered a high risk industry. We are undertaking a review of our processes, operations and performing extensive supply chain analysis to fully understand potential risk areas along with the development of appropriate mitigation strategies.

The majority of Patterson Building Group's procurement (over 90%) is project based and predominately delivered through our subcontractors and suppliers who are typically Australian registered businesses. Other aspects of project procurement are completed directly with manufacturers, distributors, suppliers, or consultants who are also typically Australian registered businesses. We are working both internally and with external specialists to undertake our supply chain analysis. This process aims to ensure our subcontractors and suppliers comply with all applicable regulations and legislation relating to working hours, wages, welfare and human rights.

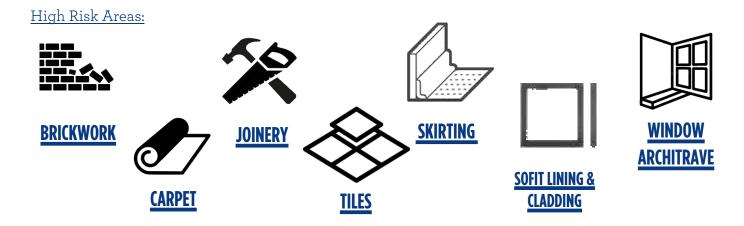

Assessing Risks of Modern Slavery in Our Supply Chain

In conjunction with our client, Stockland and Fair Supply, Patterson Building Group undertook a risk assessment case study on one of our projects, Willowdale Retirement Village (stage 8), in order to gain a deeper understanding of our supply chain and associated modern slavery risks present within our supply chain.

We began by identifying the construction materials used for a typical independent living unit which was then run through Fair Supply's proprietary risk assessment technology and an assessment report was provided.

The construction materials identified to have the highest risk of modern slavery were soffit lining and cladding, skirting and window architrave. Industry feedback provided by Fair Supply also indicated that brickwork, tiles, joinery, and carpet industries were high risk areas within our supply chain and therefore were included in this case study.

The group drafted data driven, specific and measurable supplier questionnaires which were then distributed to the suppliers of the high risk categories and finally analysed.

We recognise that our Australian suppliers provide us with goods and services across high-risk categories and thus will require further engagement and assessment.

Our Due Diligence Process

Modern Slavery Working Group:

We formed a working group comprised of senior representatives from our HR and project management divisions.

Supplier Engagement:

Our contractual documentation now incorporates specific prohibition against slavery, the use of forced, compulsory or trafficked labour, and the use of child labour in line with our Modern Slavery Policy.

Modern Slavery Action Plan:

We developed a 12-month action plan and for enhancing our approach to modern slavery due diligence, risk management, supply chain management, and training.

Policies and Procedures:

We introduced a Modern Slavery Policy underlining Patterson Building Group's commitment to tackling modern slavery within our supply chain.

Supplier and Subcontractor Risk Identification:

We conducted a case study on a project where we reviewed and prioritised subcontractors and suppliers against modern slavery risk indicators and identified 7 potentially highrisk procurement categories.

Education and Training:

We took part in an introductory modern slavery training workshop with Stockland and a human rights specialist at Fair Supply.

Effectiveness Assessment for FY2021

Patterson Building Group are committed to reporting progress through annual modern slavery statements and look forward to working with our subcontractors, suppliers and industry partners in playing our role to combat this global issue. We are dedicated to ensuring continuous improvement in our efforts to identify and tackle modern slavery risks. Effectiveness measures may include:

Risk Assessment:

We will complete a bi-annual review of all risks and controls, including modern slavery risks identified in our operations and supply chain as part of our corporate risk management review process.

Awareness Training:

We will provide training to equip our employees, subcontractors and suppliers with the knowledge and skills to identify high risk suppliers and engage with them where appropriate.

Supplier Engagement:

We will engage with high risk subcontractors and suppliers where appropriate to determine the extent to which modern slavery risks are adequately managed.

Policy Review:

We will review and improve policies and procedures based on the outcomes of our actions.
