OUR SUPPLY CHAINS

Given the industry in which we operate we do not have an extensive supply chain network. Our supply chain consists of clients that we provide specialised recruitment services to and/or thought leadership content. The Company provides services within Australia. In addition, our supply chains include, amongst others: office supplies including stationery; IT hardware and software; cleaning and catering services; marketing /advertising and print services; office fit out and building maintenance services; and professional services such as those provided by the Company's external financial auditors or legal advisors.

RISKS OF MODERN SLAVERY AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING

The Company has assessed the risk of modern slavery and human trafficking within its own operations and supply chains to be relatively low. The Company provides specialised recruitment services within Australia. Our supply chain includes sourcing candidates for our clients and customers. Where short term labour hire services are provided the Company employs or engages candidates directly. The Company does not charge candidates fees for the recruitment services provided. Our staff and candidates tend to be comprised of professionally qualified individuals or skilled individuals that are generally employed to work in office environments within Australia. Accordingly, any geographic risks are low. The Company does not generally supply labour or recruit individuals to work in high-risk sectors such as cleaning, security, meat processing, seafood processing or horticulture.

We have identified suppliers that assist us with activities related to facilities management including cleaning and catering services, office fit out and building maintenance services, hospitality for onsite and offsite catering and events to be areas of elevated risk of potential modern slavery if not managed appropriately. Workers in these areas may be from vulnerable populations including low skilled or migrant labour or workers from low socio-economic or culturally or linguistically diverse backgrounds.

The Company is licenced as required under the various State and Territory labour hire licensing schemes and complies with all State and Territory labour hire licensing schemes but recognizes the risk of being targeted by human traffickers or organisations that engage in some form of modern slavery. We have a team of professionals assisting the business with procurement activities and sales support, and we have sophisticated recruitment processes and procedures in place including a dedicated human resources and payroll team.

We take our responsibility for recruiting and supplying staff extremely seriously. We acknowledge that as a service provider to customers across a range of industries there is a risk of the Company supplying services to customers that do not meet our own ethical standards. However, we expect our suppliers to adhere to clear ethical standards, comply with the principles relating to modern slavery set out in our Corporate Offences Policy and to comply with all laws and regulations applicable to their business. During the Reporting Period, the Company has issued a supplier questionnaire and supplier communications to each new potential supplier at the outset of the relationship for the purposes of identifying and assessing possible modern slavery risks and to foster collaboration between the Company and its suppliers to address or mitigate any possible modern slavery risks.

OUR POLICIES ON SLAVERY AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING

Our Corporate Offences Policy sets out the Company's position on modern slavery and reflects our commitment to acting in accordance with our mission statement of "Ethics First" and with integrity in all our business relationships. We will review our systems and controls so that these remain effective in ensuring slavery and human trafficking is not taking place anywhere in our supply chains.

- Requiring all staff to comply with the applicable provisions relating to modern slavery as set out in our Corporate Offences Policy and to avoid any activity that might lead to, or suggest, a breach of this policy.
- Requiring suppliers to agree to comply with the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth) and that they will adhere to the principles relating to modern slavery as set out in our Corporate Offences Policy before they are approved and included in or allowed to continue to be included in, our supply chain.
- Expecting our suppliers (and any subcontractors or suppliers it uses to fulfill obligations to the Company) to comply with our Supplier Code of Conduct.

- We will take any allegation of potential slavery and human trafficking seriously and we will investigate any allegation diligently.
- Publishing a copy of this Modern Slavery Statement on the Company website.

During the Reporting Period the Company has been engaging more with suppliers on modern slavery issues and in relation to our Supplier Code of Conduct. Our focus has been on having appropriate systems and processes in place to identify, assess and remedy any actual or potential human rights risks.

TRAINING

To raise awareness of the potential risks of slavery and human trafficking, we provide guidance and training to support our employees understanding of expected behaviours. All staff have been provided with our Corporate Offences Policy and are made aware of the risks of modern slavery and human trafficking in our supply chains and our business.

OUR EFFECTIVENESS IN COMBATING MODERN SLAVERY AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING

The Company assesses the effectiveness of its actions to combat slavery and/or human trafficking through a combination of qualitative and quantitative indicators, including: the number of supplier questionnaires issued and returned; the proportion of suppliers who have agreed to the Supplier Code of Conduct; completion rates for modern slavery training; and the number of modern slavery-related matters or concerns raised through internal/external channels.

During the Reporting Period, no modern slavery breaches were disclosed by suppliers nor were any identified by the Company. During the Reporting Period, we did not receive any complaints from candidates or staff in relation to matters that could result in risks of modern slavery.

The Company recognises that an absence of reported incidents does not itself confirm the absence of risk and commits to continuing to develop additional metrics to identify and assess risks of modern slavery over subsequent reporting periods.

During the Reporting Period, the Company has seen an increase in stakeholder engagement regarding modern slavery. Suppliers have been engaging with the Company regarding modern slavery and human trafficking risks through completion of the questionnaire, the sharing of information, the negotiation of contractual terms within supplier agreements that identify compliance with the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth) and making the elimination of modern slavery and human trafficking a core obligation. These questionnaires are sent out to all future suppliers prior to the Company using their services. The Company’s process asks suppliers to complete and return the supplier questionnaire at the outset of the relationship.

During the Reporting Period, the Company continued its review of Supplier engagement processes and principles. The Company also developed and rolled out internal mandatory on-line training to staff that included a component on modern slavery. The Company also has a modern slavery training module tailored specifically for new employees. As part of its commitment to protecting human rights, during the Reporting Period a review was undertaken of the Global Human Rights Policy and the Supplier Code of Conduct. These policies form part of the framework for our commitment to promote ethical conduct and social responsibility throughout our supply chains.

We have continued to grow awareness in our business about modern slavery risks and ways to identify and address risks of modern slavery. We recognise that our review and assessment of our actions to identify and address any modern slavery risks in our operations and across our supplier chain will be an ongoing and evolving process that we are committed to build upon. We will continue to review the effectiveness of our policies and procedures with respect to modern slavery risks. The Company will also consider the need for additional ways to assess the effectiveness of our actions and to increase the level of engagement of our suppliers with the Commonwealth modern slavery laws. Each year we are setting ourselves goals so that at the end of each year we can assess our approach and make decisions regarding next steps. Over subsequent reporting periods, we will continue to review and assess our systems and processes to assess the effectiveness of our actions to continually improve our response to modern slavery and human trafficking risks in our operations and supply chains.
