Introduction

Decmil is subject to the Modern Slavery Act (2018) (Cth) ('Act') that commenced in operation on 1 January 2019. This is our first annual modern slavery statement as required by the Act. Decmil is committed to protecting human rights within the areas over which it has control and to adhering with the Modern Slavery Act 2018.

The Act defines modern slavery as including eight types of serious exploitation: trafficking in persons, slavery, servitude, forced marriage, forced labour, debt bondage, the worst forms of child labour, and deceptive recruiting for labour or services. Traceability and transparency are key focuses for Decmil to ensure sustainable and ethical sourcing within our Supply Chain.

Decmil are committed to ensuring that all Project personnel understand the nature of their obligations under the Act and are sufficiently committed and well informed to be able to play their part in the protection of human and environmental rights.

Code of Conduct

Our Code of Conduct (“Code”) sets a standard of behaviour throughout Decmil which guides how we act when performing our work, how we make decisions and against which we can measure our performance and hold ourselves accountable. All Decmil employees are expected, at all times, to act consistently with the Code.

The Code comprises principles that apply in various aspects of our working environment, including how we interact with colleagues and how we engage third parties to perform work for us or to represent us. Beneath each principle, the Code provides an explanation and then practical implications for what we must do and what we must not do and provides examples to illustrate how the principles can apply in specific situations.

Our Code outlines where to go for further help, and how to raise concerns through various channels including. Our Board, CEO and Executive Leadership Team are deeply committed to our Code.

All Decmil employees are responsible for knowing and following the ethical, legal and policy requirements that apply to their jobs and for reporting any suspected breaches of law or of our Code.

Supply Chain Code of Conduct

Our Supply Chain Code of Conduct (“SCOC”), developed this year, sets out the minimum standards of behaviour that Decmil expects our suppliers and subcontractors to meet in the areas of business integrity, health and safety, environmental, labour and human rights and compliance.

Decmil expects suppliers to read, understand and ensure that their business and supply chain meet the standards outlined in the SCOC. Supplier’s ability to meet the standards in the SCOC will be taken into account when making procurement decisions.

Human Rights Policy

Decmil recognises the importance of protecting human rights and is committed to protecting the rights of all people including its employees and the communities in which we operate in.

One of the potential major human rights challenges facing Decmil is the risk of modern slavery in the Company’s supply chain. This reflects the fact that Decmil has a supply chain that procures a range of goods and services from many countries around the world.

Modern slavery has the potential to exist in the supply chain through a variety of circumstances including:

- Forced labour
- Child labour
- Debt bondage
- Human trafficking
- Abuse of requirements for a minimum living wage
- Discriminatory employment practices

Our Human Rights Policy sets out our strategy which includes respecting the rights and dignity of all people, complying with all legal requirements.

Our Supply Chain

In FY2019:20, Decmil engaged with approximately 2,091 suppliers from 6 countries and approximately 0.04 per cent of our total spend was from international suppliers. In addition, our suppliers often have many suppliers of their own.

The statistics show that Decmil engages largely with suppliers that are local and Australian based. Our works within Western Australia, Queensland and Victoria are largely supported by suppliers sourced within the relevant states. The majority of procurement spend is within Australia including a considerable proportion within remote regions including regional Western Australia, Stuart Basin in Queensland and regional Victoria.

The majority of our supplier spend is with Australian businesses (Australian Business Number, ABN provided). Whilst our international spend is minimal, when reviewing where the spend is occurring, the countries are at medium to low risk of modern slavery.

When looking at supplier spend at an entity level, the largest spend occurs within Decmil Australia Pty Ltd. Decmil Australia has engaged with over 940 suppliers during FY20, and 99.96% of our goods and services were procured within Australia.

We strive to buy local products and engage local services. In areas where the skills, goods and standards we need are unavailable, we look at opportunities for developing that capacity, and in doing so, support local economic development. As part of our commitment to local procurement, where needed, we provide prospective suppliers with technical support to help them meet our supplier standards.

Decmil use a range of suppliers across the entire life cycle of our projects - from design phase through to construction delivery and commissioning and handover. Our suppliers include transportation, catering and equipment for running our operations. In addition to labour hire spend, our largest spend categories are design consultancy, transportation and logistics, and consumables (which include construction and operating supplies).

At Decmil we also have a focus on using Indigenous businesses to support our Projects. This year the Reid Highway Project in Western Australia achieved a major accomplishment in reaching a milestone of achieving double the target spend on Aboriginal Businesses. Our Aboriginal suppliers range from labour hire to stationery and uniform providers, through to specialist heritage consultants.

If our suppliers are required to perform works on our Projects, as part of our mobilisation process we require them to provide us with proof of ID and proof of right to work within Australia. With this check in place, we can safeguard that workers' rights are respected.

Supplier Governance Framework

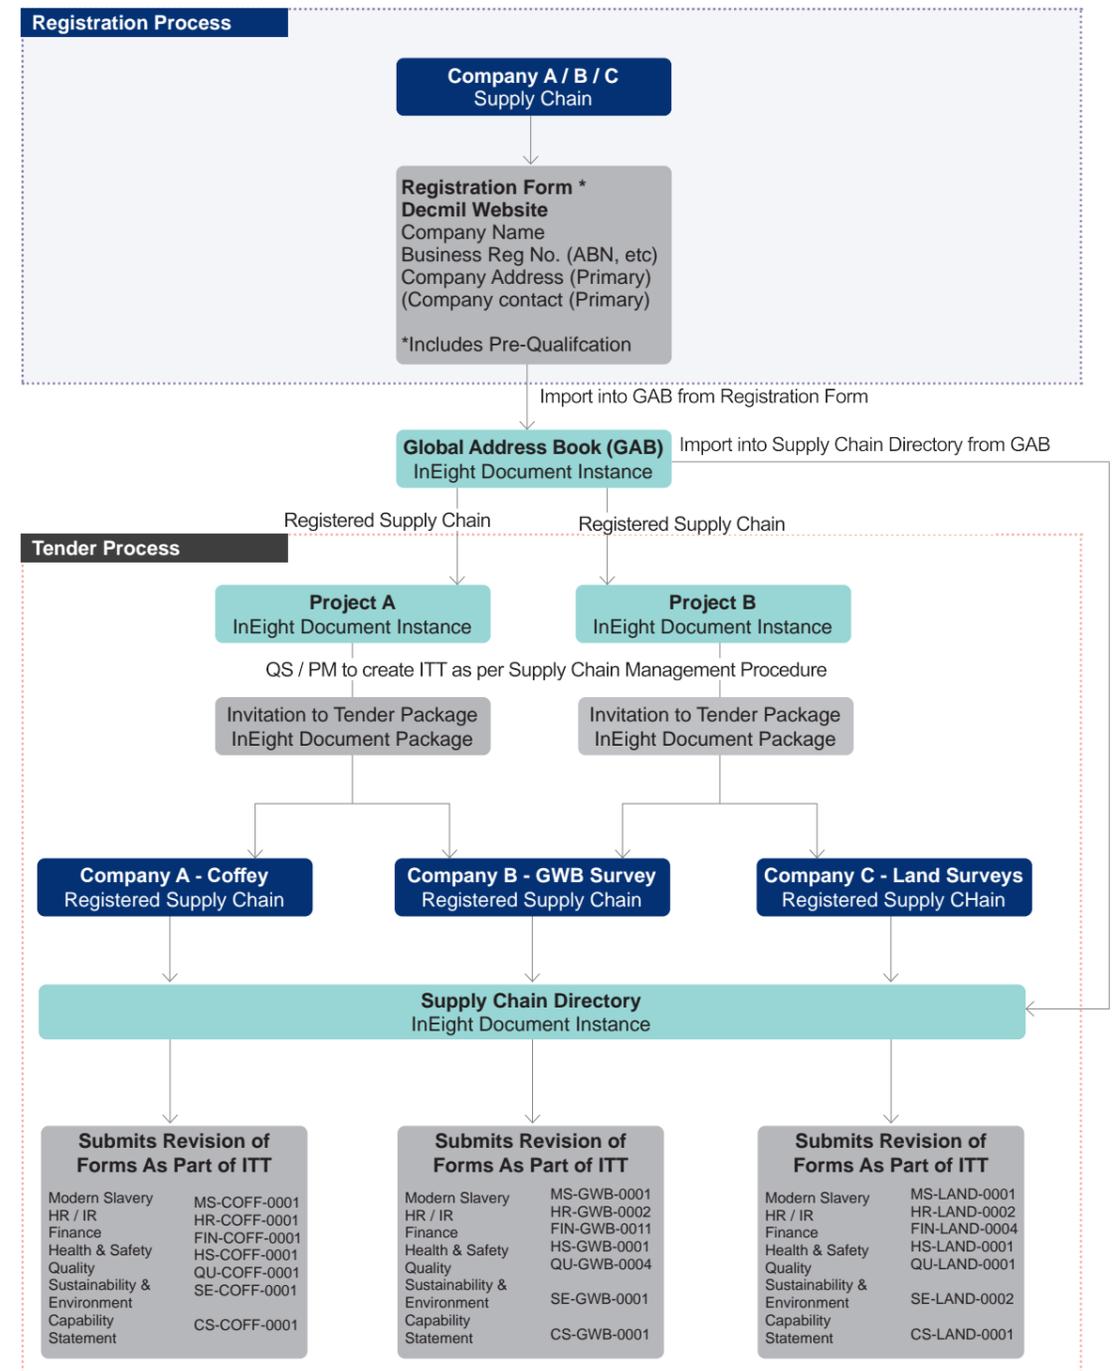

Decmil rely on the services and expertise of our Supply Chain to assist in the successful delivery of Projects throughout our sectors. To assist us in effective decision making, we assess suppliers against the following categories:

- Code of Conduct
- Anti-bribery & Corruption
- Code of Ethics
- Corporate Governance
- Finance
- Modern Slavery
- Human Rights & Industrial Relations
- Health & Safety
- Quality
- Environment & Sustainability.

We work with our suppliers to assess whether they are meeting our standards. Where we identify concerns about supplier performance, we engage with the supplier, seeking constructive dialogue and remediation of noncompliance with our standards.

Supplier Due Dilligence

Decmil is currently in the process of implementing new software to facilitate a new supply chain management process. That new supply chain management process is set to be utilised on any new Project award to Decmil from June 2020. Our new supply chain management process is set in out in the below workflow.

From the Workflow process an Invitation to Tender (ITT) is required to be issued as a part of any tender process for a potential supplier to work with Decmil. As part of the ITT questionnaire, suppliers are required to respond to the question “Are you prepared to provide details in accordance with Decmil’s Modern Slavery Questionnaire should you be invited to tender?”

If suppliers are successful in the ITT, they are then required to complete the Modern Slavery Questionnaire which consists of 12 questions based on the requirements of the Act.

Remediation

For suppliers who are unable to satisfy the requirements for demonstrating that they have an appropriate risk management processes in place, or are unwilling to share this information, Decmil may take further action, such as engaging with senior management of the supplier, implementing a remediation plan or, not utilising their services.

Assessing Effectiveness of our Governance Framework

Potential suppliers who have completed the supply chain questionnaire and have met all requirements, enter into a contract with Decmil if their services are required. Our new supply chain management process continuously monitors the supplier over the term of their contract to identify any new risks or issues that may arise in the period. At a minimum, in July every year, current suppliers are required to update their information within our supplier portal. Suppliers are required to review the information provided under the Modern Slavery Act section. If suppliers update their information with anything that would be deemed as high risk or breach to the Act, we will review their service requirements with Decmil.

Over the last year, we did not identify any instances of modern slavery in our audit program. However, findings in audits of suppliers suggest some practices (e.g. excessive working hours and rates of pay) were not consistent with legislative requirements. Whilst not constituting modern slavery, these are not consistent with our expectations as set out in our Code. These issues have been resolved.

Grievance Mechanisms

Decmil has an external operated whistle-blower hotline through an online portal or by phone. Employees and third parties can access our whistle-blower system in order to report suspected and actual illegal activities or breaches to Company policies include the Code or our Human Rights Policy.
