Our Commitment

Brickworks opposes all forms of slavery and forced labour. We are committed to respecting and supporting the dignity, well-being and human rights of our employees and those we engage with through our supply network. We are also committed to working collaboratively with our partners and suppliers to ensure that our business is conducted in an honest and ethical manner. This includes identifying and addressing human rights risks, including modern slavery, throughout our business and supply chain.

The construction, manufacturing, forestry, mining, quarrying, cleaning and security sectors are especially at risk from modern slavery practices – and these are the sectors that Brickworks both serves and sources from.

This is our fourth Modern Slavery Statement (“statement”). While this statement is in response to the Federal Modern Slavery Act 2018, it is driven by, and reflective of, our commitment to act on any incidences of modern slavery in our supply chain. The statement aligns with and complements our aim of improving Brickworks’ sustainability disclosures. It is part of our overall Sustainability Framework which links our sustainability commitments with our business strategy.

Our approach

a) Our policies and governance

Brickworks' governance framework, shown below, ensures strong business ethics and behaviour.

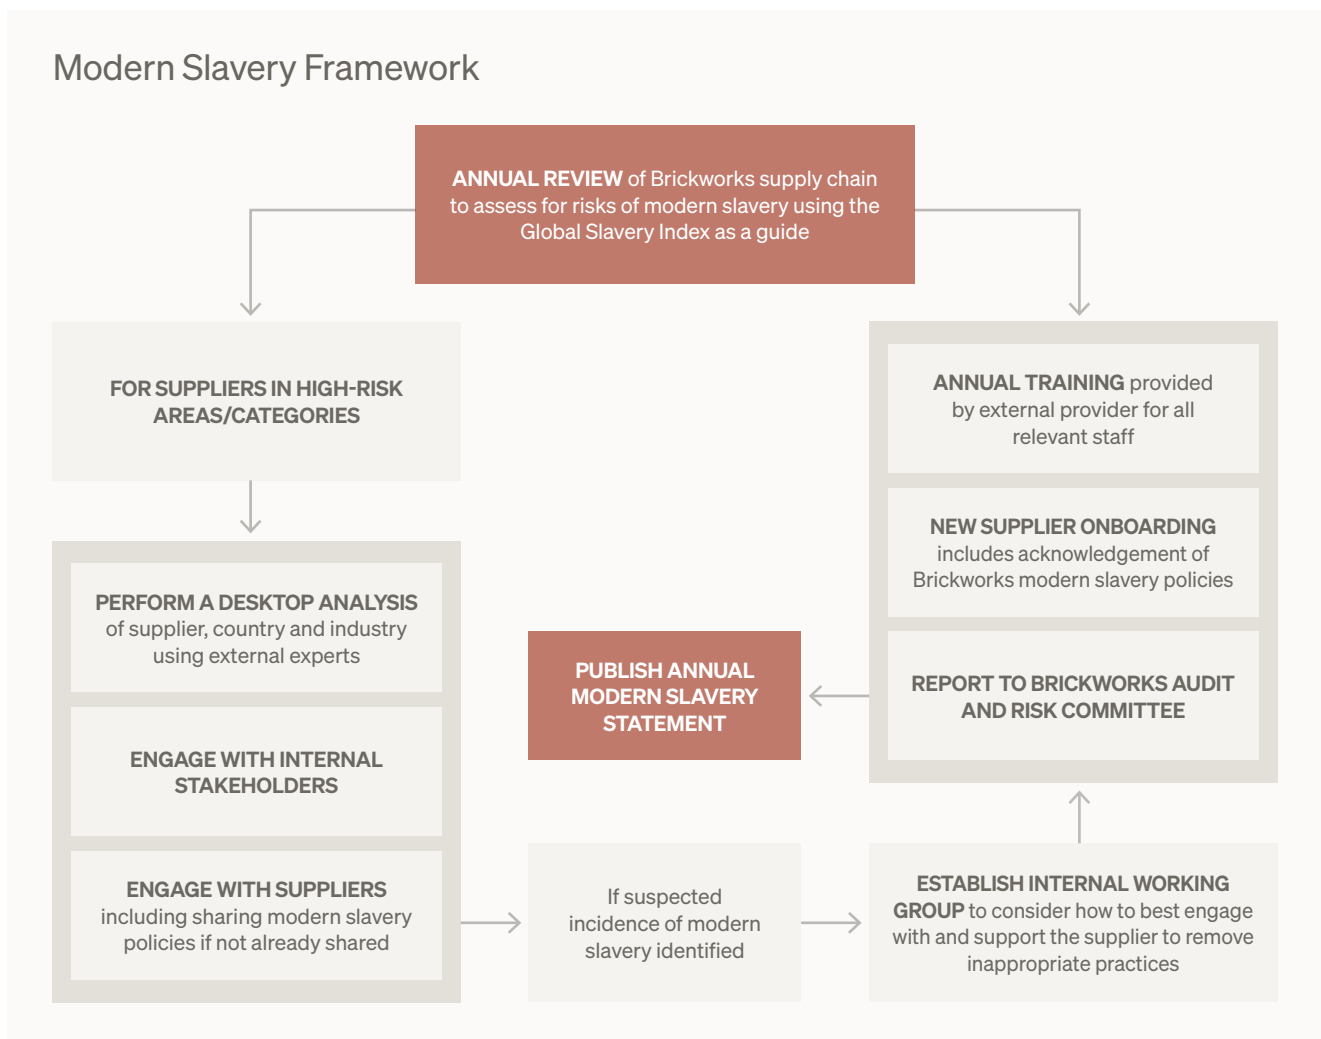

Brickworks' business behaviour is guided by our values as articulated in our Code of Conduct, We Are Brickworks. This code articulates how we conduct our business, including acting in an ethical and lawful manner. The code applies to everyone who works for, or in conjunction with, Brickworks including directors, employees and contractors. It also refers to our seven key values: care, innovate, collaborate, integrity, lead, inclusive and exceed.

In terms of our overall procurement practices, Brickworks' governance procedures ensure adequate procurement pricing, prompt payment of suppliers and good procurement planning. These procedures are backed by relevant Brickworks procurement policies and authorisation limits, as well as an annual internal audit program.

In relation to human rights and modern slavery, Brickworks' Modern Slavery Policy outlines our commitment to respect and encourage human rights and not tolerate the existence of modern slavery in our operations or supply chain. This policy is further articulated in Brickworks' Modern Slavery Supplier Code of Conduct, which sets out the minimum expected standards of behaviour and legal obligations that we require our suppliers to meet around labour and human rights, health and safety and modern slavery.

Brickworks has policies covering anti-bribery, corruption and whistle-blower practices. All our employees are required to undertake annual on-line training to demonstrate their understanding of these policies. Our Whistle-blower Policy encourages the raising of misconduct or any behaviour that is inconsistent with the Group's culture, values or policies. Be Honest @ Brickworks is an anonymous avenue for all staff in the US and Australia to raise concerns of suspected or actual misconduct, including any concerns around procurement practices or outcomes. The Be Honest @ Brickworks reporting platform is easily accessible from our intranet page and other avenues.

The above policies and procedures are backed up by a genuine commitment to address modern slavery, which is driven from the top with strong backing from our Board. The Board's Audit and Risk Committee is responsible for oversight of this on behalf of our Board and receives regular reports on our modern slavery processes and outcomes. Our Modern Slavery framework is shown below. Our General Manager of Risk oversees the Modern Slavery framework and engages outside expertise when and where needed, including the use of Deloitte to undertake reviews of suppliers located in high-risk geographies and to assist in supplier engagement.

b) Identifying and understanding our risks

Brickworks operations in Australia and the U.S. source most materials and services from within Australia and the U.S. respectively, with raw materials typically provided from owned quarries. Over 97% of Brickworks' Australian operations Tier 1 suppliers are located in Australia and New Zealand, with the remaining 3% spanning across countries throughout Asia, Europe and North America.

Several of these countries sit in the moderate to high-risk bands of the Global Slavery Index in terms of prevalence or vulnerability to modern slavery, or where their country's response is not strong. Collectively, those countries in high-risk or medium-risk bands comprise less than 1% of all Brickworks' Tier 1 suppliers yet present a potential link to modern slavery.

Most Tier 1 products sourced internationally are premium roof tiles and premium bricks which are imported from Italy, Spain and Belgium and Terraçade tiles from China. Some raw material additives are sourced by Australian and US suppliers from South Africa, China, India and Vietnam. Cement for the Australian operations is sourced by Southern Cross Cement typically from suppliers in Thailand, Indonesia and Vietnam. Some stone sourced by Brickworks is processed in Indonesia and limestone pavers are imported from Egypt and stone and composite marble from China. We also source steel and aluminium system componentry from an Australian Supplier from China and Thailand.

From time-to-time capital equipment is imported from overseas countries, such as USA, Germany, France, Spain, Holland, Japan and Italy.

In addition to the supplier's location, the Global Slavery Index also identifies two areas in our supply chain considered to be high-risk; labour and building materials (including bricks). As a major manufacturer and supplier of building products to the construction industry, Brickworks operates in a high-risk sector for modern slavery. The construction sector has significant challenges in detecting, understanding and responding to modern slavery risks due to the length, complexity and geographic spread of its supply chains. Contributing factors also include high demand for low-skilled, manual, low-waged work, which has been identified as likely to facilitate forced labour.

We recognise that our Tier 1 suppliers will have modern slavery risks in their supply chains and that our supply chains are linked to other high-risk industries, such as cleaning or clothing and textiles.

Brickworks annually reviews its Tier 1 suppliers by geography, industry and product to help assess and better understand its modern slavery risks.

Brickworks includes modern slavery consideration as part of the set-up for new vendors, each of which must read and acknowledge Brickworks' modern slavery policies and our expectations of suppliers, with regards to human rights.

Brickworks has continued engaging expert consultants to assist with desktop assessments of potentially high-risk tier 1 and tier 2 suppliers and together with management to engage with them to minimise the risk of modern slavery in their own operations and supply chains. These reviews did not identify any known or suspected incidents of Modern Slavery.

By combining these risk assessments of industry, geography and product, Brickworks prioritises its suppliers by a range of criteria that pinpoints those presenting the greatest risk in our supply chain.

c) Our global due diligence activities in FY23

To support Brickworks' position of zero-tolerance for any type of slavery-related practices, we undertook a range of activities in the reporting period to identify, understand and respond to specific human rights risks associated with our suppliers, materials, countries, sectors and operations.

During FY23, we took several due diligence actions across both the Australian and US businesses:

- ▶ We continued to engage experts in the human rights field to assist with the ongoing development of the modern slavery framework.
- ▶ We undertook an assessment our Tier 1 suppliers based on the Global Slavery Index indicators to identify suppliers in high-risk categories (see above section).
- ▶ Brickworks has continued to identify and assess Tier 2 suppliers in high-risk categories, and also engaged with them directly on the risks of modern slavery.

- ▶ We engaged expert consultants to undertake a review of those suppliers in high-risk areas/industries.
- ▶ Currently, all new vendors read and acknowledge our Modern Slavery Policy and agree to our Modern Slavery Supplier Code of Conduct.
- ▶ Inclusion of an annual Modern Slavery training module as part of the group's online training program. 891 staff in the Australian business completed training module in FY23. Note however, that the training module in the US operation was still in the process of being rolled out at the end of the reporting period.

These activities have enacted our commitment to modern slavery in FY23 and continue to inform the improvement of our modern slavery management framework.

d) Measuring our effectiveness

Brickworks constantly monitors the effectiveness of the tools and processes we use in relation to modern slavery risks within our operations and supply chain. We are pleased to report that to date Brickworks has not identified any actual or suspected cases of modern slavery in its supply chain. However, we continue to monitor and measure the effectiveness of our:

- ▶ Supplier communication – engagement with suppliers in high-risk categories to measure suppliers' understanding of Brickworks' overall risk management and the risks of modern slavery.
- ▶ Supplier evaluation – annual risk review of our supply chain. Identified two new tier 1 suppliers in high risk geographies.
- ▶ Employee communication – enhanced and supported through annual online training.
- ▶ Whistle-blower program – encouraging the raising of misconduct or any behaviour that is inconsistent with the Group's culture, values or policies.
- ▶ Governance tools – our policies and procedures are currently being reviewed in response to the McMillan review of the Modern Slavery Act tabled in parliament.

e) Communicating, engaging and collaborating with our stakeholders on modern slavery

This fourth Modern Slavery Statement is an important document for Brickworks, not just because it is required under the Commonwealth Modern Slavery Act 2018. It is important because it communicates a powerful message to our internal and external stakeholders on our position in relation to modern slavery and is a platform for our engagement and collaboration with them.

Throughout the process of responding to the Modern Slavery Act 2018, Brickworks has engaged with its owned and controlled entities, as well as those it has a direct business relationship with. In particular Brickworks engages with its US operations and key cement supplier, Southern Cross Cement throughout the year as part of its Modern Slavery management program. This engagement has been important to confirm that these entities are both aware of, and responsive to, the legislation. Brickworks has used this opportunity to request information and leverage resources to ensure a coherent, supportive and coordinated response across the Group.

f) Building our capacity and that of our suppliers

Should our risk assessment processes uncover any cases or instances where suppliers do not meet the Modern Slavery Supplier Code of Conduct, or any breaches of the code within Brickworks' supply chain, we will engage directly with the suppliers to understand how they are managing these risks. We will assist with any remediation and develop an action plan to eradicate any risk in a transparent, timely and efficient manner. Should the supplier be uncooperative, appropriate action will be taken by Brickworks, including termination of the business relationship, if necessary. For any identified actual or suspected breach, a working group will be established with responsibility for managing known, or suspected, cases of modern slavery.

Brickworks is committed to working collaboratively with our suppliers to ensure that our expectations of them, and the standards they need to meet, are clearly understood and their potential exposure to risk is minimised.

What's next

Brickworks remains committed to an ongoing management process to identify, prevent, mitigate and account for how we address actual and potential adverse human rights impacts in our operations and supply chains, including modern slavery.

Over the FY24 period, our key focus areas will be on:

- ▶ Complying with all legislative requirements, remaining up to date with emerging best practice for modern slavery management, and monitoring changes to the Federal legislation and its administration.
- ▶ Strengthening the alignment of our modern slavery risk processes and responses across our brands and controlled entities.
- ▶ Socialising Brickworks' Modern Slavery Supplier Code of Conduct among our suppliers, our controlled entities and our business partners.
- ▶ Conducting an annual evaluation of our supply chain risk.
- ▶ Strengthening our current engagement processes through audit and conducting direct supplier engagement to socialise our policies and understand the suppliers awareness of Modern Slavery.
- ▶ Continuing the modern slavery training for all our employees through our online platform.
- ▶ A review has been undertaken by Professor John McMillan into the operation of the Modern Slavery Act. His report makes a series of recommendations which is before government for their consideration. We will monitor and respond to the recommendations and government's response.
- ▶ Develop relevant KPIs for the key roles involved in implementing our modern slavery risk management approach.
