Modern Slavery Operational & Supply Chain Risk Profile

Burbank sources its products through local suppliers and abides by fair work legislation nationally, this reduces the opportunity of modern slavery to occur in the first instance.

However, Burbank recognises that modern slavery is complex issue and can occur and several points in the supply chain or business process despite current legislative requirements.

Burbank has completed a risk review of its current structure and potential exposure areas and have determined the following areas as have a low risk in breaching the 2018 modern slavery act.

- Burbank Group employed staff, contractors, and consultants. These are managed in house through corporate services.
- Site based contractors and where our contractors further subcontract the work, under payment was identified as the greater risk which does not constitute Modern Slavery.
- Property development at this stage only occurs within Australia where the directors have a clear oversight of the operations.
- The financial brokerage arm engages financial institutions that have a base in Australia, who are governed by local laws.
- Storage Box is a wholly own subsidiary that only engages local resources.
- Air services only operates within Australia using local suppliers and resources.
- Beacon Building Services has a similar exposure profile as the residential construction arm of the Group of companies.

The Burbank group is aware that Modern Slavery can be difficult to detect and manage in a complex and global environment. Some of our material suppliers who source products or components from overseas, may have Modern Slavery concerns. Burbank have addressed these in next section Risk Management & Due Diligence

Risk management and due diligence

To manage the risks of modern slavery in our supply chain, the Burbank Group of Companies have completed the following measures:

- Introduced a modern slavery statement in all new supply agreements.
- Introduced a modern slavery statement to existing suppliers on their contract renewal.
- Implemented a modern slavery training program to educate it staff on how to identify modern slavery, its impacts and risks of modern slavery.

Modern Slavery Working Group

Corporate services have a well-established governance committee who have oversight of the Burbank Group of Companies. The Governance committee comprise of the Burbank Group Chief Financial Officer, head of People Culture Performance, Executive Team representative, head of Risk & Compliance and Legal Counsel.

Disclosure

The Burbank Group has in place a whistle-blower policy to protect and provide the mechanism in which any staff member can disclose any unlawful, unethical, or improper conduct without recourse.

The policy provides the framework and information on the mechanisms in place to report and ensure the rights and wellbeing of the person is protected.

Procurement

Each group entity has a dedicated person who governs direct supplier agreements. All supply agreements have a requirement on the incumbent supplier or service provider to ensure the principles of the modern slavery act are adhered to regardless of the turnover of the business entity.

Contractor Onboarding & Management

The Risk & Compliance team manage the onboarding of external contractors for all but one of the Burbank Group entities. There is an initial business prequalification system, then each person within the approved entity is inducted into the Burbank Group of companies. This provides an independent review and assessment for each contracting organisation. Also provide a direct communication channel to onsite workers.

Consultation Process with Group Entities

The Burbank Group entities are owned by one managing director who has the controlling interest across all Burbank Group entities. The Managing Directors and General managers of the Burbank Group entities are provided the opportunity for consultation and review of the Burbank Group Modern Slavery Statement.

Impact of COVID19

It is expected that COVID 19 will continue to be a factor in our operations throughout 2024. Close monitoring, hygiene practices along with staff and contractor support will continue to be in place. The Burbank group recognise the variants of COVID 19 may potentially disrupt our human resourcing, manufacturing, and supply chains. The impact is not expected to be as great as in previous years due to the availability of vaccines and available anti-viral medications. Awareness programs remain in place along with staff care plans.

Future Commitments

Burbank will continue to collaborate with its stakeholders to prevent and address any contribution that Burbank may have to the global issue of modern slavery.

Burbank will achieve this by focusing on raising awareness of the forms of modern slavery among our employees and suppliers, continuing to evolve our due diligence processes to aid in the identification of risks, expanding the scope of our supply chain risk assessment, reviewing existing processes and exploring ways to improve identification and action on risks throughout our supply chain.

Updates to our Modern Slavery management systems include:

- Assessment of 749 contractors against the modern slavery criteria in 2023
- Updated modern slavery review in the contractor management system to include suppliers.
