Unisys further recognizes the right to freedom of association and collective bargaining for all associates [employees].

Through Unisys’ internal programs and via associate [employee] representatives in certain jurisdictions, Unisys aims to achieve open communications with associates [employees] globally across various channels. Structure, operations and supply chains

The information set out earlier in this statement in relation to Unisys' stance on modern slavery and its operations applies to Unisys Australia for financial year 1 January 2021 to 31 December 2021 ("Statement Period"). Some additional information is set out below.

Unisys Australia is a wholly owned subsidiary of Unisys Corporation. During the Statement Period, Unisys Australia had two subsidiaries - Unisys Technical Services Australia Pty Ltd (which conducted no business over the reporting period covered by this statement) and Unisys Mortgage Processing (No. 1) Pty Ltd (which conducts mortgage processing operations).

Unisys Australia has approximately 677 employees and has offices in Canberra and Sydney (where its head office is located).

Unisys Australia delivers secure digital solutions to businesses and governments. In order to develop and deliver our solutions, Unisys Australia partners with, and sources from a large number and broad type of suppliers, ranging from those who provide office supplies, or skilled labour, as well as high-end physical and cloud delivered technologies.

Technical, Professional and other Labour services represent the largest segments of our expenditure in Australia, with just over half of Unisys annual spend of approximately A$82M disbursed in the Statement Period belonging to these. IT & Telecommunications supply is the next largest grouping, covering about a third of our annual spend, and then Corporate & Workplace services (including our property leases and costs of facility operations) holds the remainder.

Risks of modern slavery practices in our operations and supply chains (and in the operations and supply chains of any entities we own or control)

Unisys Australia and its subsidiaries are not involved with the manufacture of products, and do not have particularly long or complex supply chains or distribution channels. The nature of our business and the advanced solutions we provide to customers means we are typically employing and sourcing highly skilled labour and professional services from the local marketplace. We do also source products and technologies and some risks of modern slavery may be present in the manufacturing or distribution of these products. However, these products and technologies are sourced only from reputable and established business partners and suppliers which complement our skills, and finish our solutions, and we do this only after a full and multi-faceted due diligence process is carried out on new and renewed sources of supply to our operations. In this due diligence we carefully review the legitimacy, stability and reputation of our potential business partners, including the examination of any potential red flags on the conduct of these businesses, their shareholders and management team. We consider the risk of modern slavery practices being present in our limited supply chains to be very low.

Actions taken by us and any entities we own or control to address risks, including due diligence and remediation processes

The information set out earlier in this statement relating to Unisys' commitments and actions taken to assess and address instances of modern slavery (including in relation to the due diligence of third party business partners) applies to Unisys Australia. In line with Unisys' commitments we confirm that we would take all appropriate steps to rectify any confirmed incidences of modern slavery in our operations or supply chains. Unisys Australia would work collaboratively with its suppliers and, if necessary, their suppliers, to achieve these goals.

Assessing the effectiveness of actions taken

Unisys Australia periodically reviews all its processes, procedures and policies to ensure they remain up to date, effective and as close to best practice as we are able to achieve.

As referenced above, our associates [employees] complete mandatory annual training and certification of compliance with our Code of Ethics and Business Conduct. A Unisys Compliance Helpline is made available and is promoted to our associates [employees], business partners, and third parties as a means for obtaining guidance on potential ethics issues, or to report any ethics violations. For the Statement Period, no modern slavery complaint has been reported to the Unisys Compliance Helpline.

Consultation

Unisys Australia is a well-integrated business. The same practices and procedures regarding responsible business, ethics and compliance apply to the affiliates in our group at a global and local level. We have communicated with the entities which we own and control regarding this statement and our approach to modern slavery noting they are subject to the same codes and processes as set out in this statement.
