2.2 Operations

State Street provides custody, depository, investment, research and fund accounting, fund administration, asset management, investment banking, and alternative investment services.

SSBT is SSC's principal banking subsidiary. In Australia, it operates as a specialized bank that services and manages assets on behalf of institutional clients.

SSAL provides custodial and administrative services for institutional clients in Australia.

SSGATC provides investment management and fiduciary services for U.S.-domiciled unit investment trusts, U.S.-domiciled bank-maintained funds, U.S.-managed client accounts, and outsourced investment management services to institutional clients.

SSGM LLC provides transaction execution, clearing and settlement services to a number of institutional clients, located in the following regions; North America, Middle East and Asia Pacific. SSGM LLC operates largely from locations in the United States, however it has a small trading desk in Australia.

The State Street Group conducts its operations through locations in North America, Europe and Asia Pacific. Across our organization, we have a common operating model and a global infrastructure. To support our global operating model, we have automated processes and established Global Processing Centers in a number of countries, including China, India and Poland.

2.3 Supply Chains

While components of our services may be performed by affiliated entities, State Street remains fully responsible for the delivery of services to its clients and entities in the State Street Group are subject to the same Global Human Trafficking Modern Slavery Policy ("Policy") (see below under "Human Resources" in section 3 for additional details about the Policy) and supply chain standards. The Policy reflects State Street's commitment to acting ethically and with integrity in all of its business relationships and to implementing and enforcing effective systems and controls to reduce the risk of slavery, servitude, forced or compulsory labour, or human trafficking ("Modern Slavery") taking place anywhere in its supply chains.

Our global custody network covers more than 100 markets worldwide. In the United States, Canada, the United Kingdom and Ireland, we utilise our own local market custody operations. In other markets, we have selected a local agent bank to act as our sub-custodian. Our objective is to obtain custody and associated services from established institutions that are demonstrating a consistent and extensive level of commitment to the securities processing and custody business. These institutions are expected to comply with our specific operating and service requirements. The operating requirements clearly establish the criteria for performance by the sub-custodian. We re-appraise all of our sub-custody arrangements on a regular basis to ensure that we continue to maintain the highest level of quality, efficiency and operational integrity throughout our network.

State Street's supply chains also include a combination of global and regional suppliers to support business needs related to information technology services (including hardware/software, Telecommunications and Audio Visual), goods and services (including office supplies, print services, food services/catering and subscription services), and professional consulting services (including legal, financial, audit and IT consulting).

3. Our Modern Slavery Risks and Actions Taken

As part of a global financial services organization, State Street operates in a highly regulated industry that requires it to be authorised and to be subject to regulatory supervision. We consider the risk of Modern Slavery occurring within our operations to be low. However, we recognize that there may be an indirect risk of Modern Slavery to State Street through our supply chain and investments.

Global Treasury Investment Portfolio

On a global level the investment portfolio of the State Street Group is primarily invested in low risk jurisdictions, as evidenced by the GlobalSlaveryIndex.org. For issuers in medium to high risk locations a statement on modern slavery or action taken on human rights is relied upon.

Supply chain standards

We expect our suppliers and their supply chain to comply fully with all applicable laws and regulations in the conduct of their business. Therefore, although respecting human rights and environmental issues in the supply chain is ultimately our suppliers' responsibility, we take the steps outlined below to communicate clearly our expectations to our suppliers.

As part of the supplier Request for Proposal (RFP) process managed by our global procurement services team, potential suppliers are asked to confirm whether they have a policy in place prohibiting child and/or forced labour, whether the policy extends to their own suppliers and subcontractors, and to provide a copy of the policy. Those potential suppliers are also asked for information about social compliance audits of their own suppliers and subcontractors, with particular reference to significant risks for incidents of child labour. That due diligence process also seeks information about a potential supplier's equal opportunity, human rights, anti-corruption, and health and safety policies.

As part of the RFP process, our global procurement services team also specifically asks potential suppliers to confirm their compliance with human rights laws, rules and regulations. Those potential suppliers are also asked to provide information about how they monitor and comply with those legal standards.

Suppliers who are subject to our standard supplier agreement are asked to represent and warrant that they comply with all applicable laws, regulations, and other legal obligations to their personnel specifically including, but not limited to, employment laws, and prohibitions against insider trading, bribery, and corruption.

Additionally, suppliers who are engaged using our standard supplier agreement are asked to confirm that they:

- have not committed or been notified that they have been placed under investigation for any offences relating to human trafficking and/or slavery;
- are not aware of any circumstances within their supply chain that could give rise to an investigation or a prosecution; and
- will comply with legal standards relating to human trafficking and/or slavery.

Those suppliers are asked to notify us immediately if those circumstances change. Additionally, the standard supplier agreement asks them to provide us with their own Modern Slavery statement, which sets out the steps they have taken to ensure that slavery and/or human trafficking is not taking place in any of their supply chains or in any part of their business.

From time to time, potential suppliers are not able to provide the information requested in full or seek to negotiate amendments to the standard supplier agreement. Such requests are dealt with on a case by case basis, taking into consideration the risks associated with the supplier's industry and its geographic location.

Third Party Risk Management

As part of its commitment to fair, ethical and responsible business practices, State Street evaluates Modern Slavery considerations through its Third Party Risk Management ("TPRM") program. TPRM is a process and framework designed to enable State Street to consistently assess and manage the risks associated with our supply chain prior to, and throughout the lifecycle of, third party vendor engagement. Our due diligence questionnaires include requesting information about suppliers' ethics policies and confirming whether the supplier has considered its obligations with respect to human rights, Modern Slavery, and human trafficking. Under the compliance and operational risk assessments that form part of the TPRM process, we verify if third parties have processes ensuring compliance with laws and regulations for both their own organizations and any sub-contractors used to provide services to State Street. Any control deficiencies identified will require a remediation plan along with a strategy and timeframe for attaining compliance with the plan.

Additionally, all vendors engaged by State Street are required to complete an Inherent Risk Questionnaire ("IRQ"). Within the IRQ we ask which countries the third party will provide their product or service from, and the countries selected are risk rated based on scores provided by the Enterprise Risk Management Sovereign Risk team. These risk ratings include ESG risk, which considers civil liberties, including vulnerability to human trafficking risk and government mitigation measures, as a factor. Engagements in high risk countries must be reviewed and approved by the Sovereign Risk team as part of the due diligence process.

Human Resources

The State Street Group has in place a Global Human Trafficking & Modern Slavery Policy which sets out State Street's guiding principles, goals and expectations for all its staff and business units globally. The policy prohibits human trafficking and related activities within the State Street Group's business, including inappropriate recruitment practices, and mandates the use of applicable RFP and master supplier agreement templates, and compliance with applicable TPRM processes.

Speak Up line

Under the State Street Group's Standard of Conduct, any individual, whether a State Street employee or not, is encouraged to report any concerns or actual, attempted, or suspected violation of applicable laws, rules, regulations or policies including concerns relating Modern Slavery. There are a number of options for individuals to escalate concerns, including through our whistleblower hotline, known as the Speak Up Line. The Speak Up Line is operated by an independent third party and is available 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. The Speak Up Line can also be used to report concerns anonymously. The Australian Whistleblower Policy is published on State Street's website in support of the speak up culture. We do not tolerate retaliatory action against anyone for good faith reporting as articulated in our Standard of Conduct and non-retaliation policies.

4. How we assess the effectiveness of our actions

State Street operates using a three lines of defence model, with the business unit as the first line, Corporate Compliance and Enterprise Risk Management as the second, and Corporate Audit as the third. The model is a common structure for risk and control assessments and provides for ongoing monitoring, testing, and oversight of our control environment. The first line of defence owns the risks associated with their activities and is responsible for establishing effective internal controls to manage such risks to an acceptable level and promoting a strong culture of risk management and risk awareness.

Modern Slavery risks have been incorporated into State Street's enterprise risk taxonomy. Periodic controls testing performed by three lines of defence is to assess the operating effectiveness of controls in place to mitigate risks. Any weaknesses or enhancements in anti-Modern Slavery controls is escalated in a timely and effective manner under incident reporting and issue management framework.

5. Process of consultation with any entities we own or control

As outlined above, the State Street Group has adopted a Global Human Trafficking Modern Slavery Policy that applies to all State Street entities, including SSBT, SSAL, SSGATC, SSGMLLC and any other legal entities in the State Street Group. All legal entities are subject to the same supply chain standards globally.

As this is the first statement under the Australian Act, State Street will continue to review and enhance its approach to addressing Modern Slavery risks in our operations and supply chain, and engage with our people and vendors to raise awareness and manage the risk of Modern Slavery and human trafficking occurring in our organization and supply chain.
