Our Organisation

Lilly Australia and Lilly NZ – Consultation, Structure, Operations and Supply Chain

This statement describes the actions taken by Lilly Australia to assess and address the risks of modern slavery in its operations and supply chain, and in those of its wholly controlled entity, Eli Lilly and Company (New Zealand) Limited ("Lilly NZ"), together referred to as Lilly ANZ.

Lilly's operations in NZ are field based, with less than 10 sales representatives located in NZ. All other NZ support including procurement and the engagement of suppliers is provided by Lilly Australia. Certain directors of Lilly Australia are also the directors of Lilly NZ and have a full understanding of Lilly NZ's business operations and supply chain.

Lilly ANZ is part of the Eli Lilly Group of Companies ("Lilly"). Our ultimate parent company, Eli Lilly and Company, is located in Indianapolis, United States. Lilly researches, develops, manufactures, and sells pharmaceutical products around the world. Lilly ANZ promotes and sells Lilly products in Australia and NZ and facilitates the conduct of clinical trials in Australia and New Zealand for Lilly.

Lilly ANZ suppliers provide goods and services across a range of categories, including:

- sales, marketing, and administration

- distribution arrangements
- clinical trials and real-world evidence research
- information technology

In the reporting period, Lilly ANZ contracted predominantly with suppliers in Australia and NZ, but also sourced limited goods and services from suppliers located in other countries.

Risks of modern slavery practices in the operations and supply chain of Lilly ANZ

Lilly ANZ views its supply chain as an extension of its operations and strives to instil Lilly's global operating principles within its supply chain. Lilly supports the United Nations Global Compact principles, adheres to human rights and labour laws, and complies with anti-corruption practices. In 2011, Lilly revised its global standards and procedures to include specific language about human rights, including Lilly's expectation that suppliers abide by human rights standards as part of the Lilly Supplier Code of Business Conduct.

Lilly is an active participant in the Pharmaceutical Supply Chain Initiative ("PSCI") industry group and adopted the PSCI principles for responsible supply chain management in 2009. The PSCI principles are designed to align with the principles of the United Nations Global Compact. They represent high-level expectations set for industry suppliers in the areas of ethics, labour, health and safety, the environment and related management systems. Lilly's Supplier Code of Business Conduct reflects the PSCI principles.

Compliance Review and Contracting

In compliance with Lilly global procedures, suppliers in Lilly ANZ's supply chain are reviewed for relevant compliance and quality issues at the initiation of their relationship with Lilly ANZ. This now includes an assessment of modern slavery risk. All agreements require that suppliers represent and warrant to Lilly ANZ that they comply with all applicable laws and regulations. For any supplier not meeting Lilly ANZ's expectations under its contractual arrangements, we reserve the right to terminate the agreement.

Internal Accountability

Lilly requires that all Lilly employees around the world comply with Lilly's internal code of business conduct, The Red Book. The Red Book is a statement of principles that guides Lilly's operations. These principles are based on 11 corporate policies and are consistent with Lilly's company values of integrity, excellence, and respect for people. The Red Book sets the expectation for behaviour and provides the ethical framework of Lilly's business. Lilly's global procedures, standards and training align with the Red Book.

Lilly policy encourages all staff to report known or suspected issues, concerns, or behaviour that could harm Lilly or those it serves. Lilly's whistle blower protection policy, 'Speaking Up: No Retaliation', reinforces Lilly's commitment to the highest standards and conduct in all our business activities.

Training

Lilly requires ongoing training and education of all employees including our supply chain management on The Red Book, associated policies and procedures, and applicable legal requirements for specific roles. Under Lilly global and local ANZ procedures, all employees must follow ethical procurement practices and Procurement must be engaged in all transactions over a certain material spend. Employees across various functions receive targeted training and education including on 'Working with Third Parties'.

Culture of Integrity and Ethical Behaviour

At Lilly, we are committed to upholding high standards of corporate conduct in our business dealings. The Red Book, our policies and procedures, compliance management systems, training programs and communications are designed to work together to reinforce a culture of integrity and ethical behaviour. Lilly's strong compliance culture is supported by the following departments: Ethics and Compliance, Human Resources, Legal, Finance and Procurement, Quality and Audit.

Actions taken by Lilly ANZ to assess and address modern slavery risks

Expansion undertaken of modern slavery risk assessment

Following our initial review last year of modern slavery risk in our supply chain, we have included modern slavery risk in our risk assessment process for the engagement of all suppliers. This must be completed prior to engaging any new suppliers and on renewal of engagements with existing suppliers. Any suppliers assessed as high risk of likelihood of modern slavery (that is, on both country and category of goods or services) are subject to increased scrutiny and additional due diligence which can include site visits and inspections. Further, where a supplier is assessed as high risk, Procurement and Legal must be consulted prior to progressing with the engagement. If a supplier is assessed as high risk on one rating only, that is, country or category of services/goods only, they are flagged for review and follow up.

Annual Assessment

We have continued in our annual review of Lilly ANZ's supply base to include an assessment of modern slavery risks, adopting the methodology used in our initial assessment and as reported below.

For the purposes of assessing the risk of modern slavery for the reporting period, Lilly ANZ conducted a risk assessment of Tier 1 suppliers, that is, suppliers from whom Lilly ANZ directly procures goods and services. Some categories of Tier 1 suppliers such as healthcare professionals and clinical trial investigators, as well as expenses charged to corporate credit cards, were excluded from this assessment.

Tier 1 suppliers assessed included both those characterised as:

- active vendors listed in finance systems, but from whom Lilly ANZ may not have procured any goods or services in the reporting period, which group totalled 345 suppliers
- suppliers from whom Lilly ANZ procured goods and services in the reporting period, totalling 214 suppliers

This continues to be considered an appropriate base to assess modern slavery risks in Lilly ANZ's supply chain for the reporting period. Utilising the Global Slavery Index 2018, risk was assessed based on country and category of goods or services, as the factors most determinative in assessing the likelihood of modern slavery risk. For the purposes of our review, high risk countries were considered those in the top 120 of 167 countries, that is above 0.25% estimated prevalence of modern slavery per 1,000 population.

Most Tier 1 suppliers were assessed as low risk, as both country and category were low risk. There were no Tier 1 suppliers in both a high-risk country and a high-risk category, and consequently no Tier 1 suppliers were considered high risk.

With one exception, all suppliers are in countries with a low risk geographically. Of 214 Tier 1 suppliers with spend in the reporting period, 208 are in Australia and New Zealand, 3 in the US, 1 in Ireland, and 1 in Israel, all countries with a low risk geographically. The one existing supplier in a high-risk country continues to be assessed as low risk. The relevant services are low risk and Lilly's risk assessment of the supplier, both at initiation of the relationship some years ago and since then, is low risk. Even so, this supplier has been flagged to ensure continued assessment, and Lilly ANZ will consider appropriate action if our risk assessment changes.

There were 2 suppliers who provided goods and services in a higher risk category but where the country risk is low. Again, Lilly will continue to monitor those suppliers and take appropriate action should this be required.

Addressing Modern Slavery Risks

Agreements

Based on the nature and level of the risk identified, in addition to incorporating the Lilly Supplier Code of Business Conduct, Legal may incorporate additional terms including audit rights, or otherwise tailor the terms of the agreement to address the risk identified. For any supplier not meeting Lilly's expectations under its contractual arrangements, Lilly ANZ reserves the right to terminate the agreement.

Planned expansion of modern slavery risk assessment

In continuing our efforts to assess and address modern slavery risks, we will be developing a Self-Assessment Questionnaire (SAQ) and where high-risk vendors are identified, completion of the SAQ will be required as part of our risk assessment process. Any appropriate risk mitigation actions identified and remediation plans developed must be completed by the supplier prior to Lilly ANZ proceeding with the engagement.

As part of our risk-based approach, we do not intend undertaking additional due diligence or other measures for suppliers assessed as low risk.

Awareness and Education – Ourselves and Our Suppliers

The Lilly ANZ leadership team continues its commitment to ensuring we understand and address modern slavery risks in our Lilly ANZ operations and supply chain. We continue to educate and train Lilly ANZ leadership and relevant employees on modern slavery including the awareness of risk, appropriate decision-making, swift reporting and action when required. Modern slavery awareness and training sessions were delivered across the affiliate last year. Going forward, this targeted training will be incorporated into our standing annual internal training process to ensure we reinforce the importance of assessing modern slavery risks in our operations, and Lilly ANZ's requirements when engaging suppliers regarding this.

Effectiveness of these actions

As we continue to execute our due diligence and monitoring activities, and engage further with suppliers, Lilly ANZ will assess the effectiveness of the actions it takes and consider other measures that may be required to uncover modern slavery risk, recognising that modern slavery is a complex issue that can manifest at different levels in our supply chain.

Responding to the call to address Modern Slavery Risks in our business

Our commitment to understanding and addressing modern slavery risk in our business operations aligns with Lilly's focus on supporting human rights and making a meaningful contribution to the world. Please refer to Lilly's 2021 ESG Report and ESG Strategy and Lilly's 2020 UNGC Communication on Progress.

Each of these efforts flows directly from Lilly's purpose, and from our core values of integrity, excellence, and respect for people.
